LEWIS REFUSES TO END WALKOUT

Ike Slaps Demo Record On Communism

General Says Ideas On Reds Not Yalta Kind

Huge Boston Crowd Greets Eisenhower

BOSTON, Oct. 21 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower blasted "godless communism" today as a terrible danger that must be repulsed and emphasized that his ideas on the Soviets were "not of the Yalta or Potsdam kind."

He gave this backhand slap to the Democratic administration record in addressing a huge crowd on the Common in predominantly Irish-Catholic and anti-Communist Boston.

Eisenhower said his reasons for opposing communism were not theoretical.

"They are not based just on reading books by Marx and Lenin and Stalin," he said. "They were reinforced by some first-hand experiences with communism and Communists. . . ."

Huge Boston Turnout

One of the greatest outpourings of his entire campaign roared a welcome to Eisenhower here — a police-estimated throng ranging from 50,000 to 100,000 persons.

Afterward, Eisenhower went on to Cambridge and another large turnout, and to Harvard Square where yelling Harvard students descended on him with such enthusiasm and energy that guards couldn't hold them back.

It gave Eisenhower's security men their first fright of the campaign. However, nothing was harmed except the general's car—which the students stripped of chromium trimmings, presumably for souvenirs.

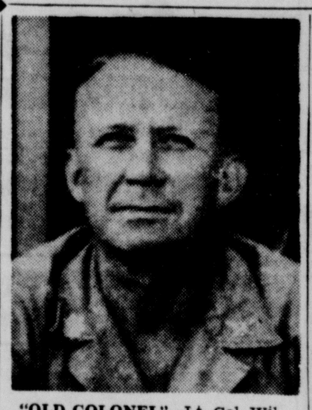

Ike Flies To New York

After a few other Massachusetts stops, including one at Lynn where a large, yelling crowd was almost unmanagable, Eisenhower flew to New York to address the annual Herald Tribune forum tonight.

Earlier, Eisenhower had campaigned without let-up on the charge that the Truman administration injected religious and racial issues into the presidential campaign to stave off defeat in November.

Traveling through Catholic French-American and Irish-American mill cities, the Republican nominee made it plain he had not accepted President Truman's denial that he ever implied the general was anti-Catholic or anti-Semitic.

Eisenhower told throngs of wildly cheering supporters in Manchester, Nashua and Lowell that the opposition had gone to "fantastic lengths" to spread "scandalous" stories about him.

"OLD COLONEL"—Lt. Col. William Isbell, Jr., (above), Gambrills, Md., died leading an infantry attack a week ago on Triangle Hill in Korea. A captain said the colonel "didn't have any damn business up there," and a sergeant said he rallied the troops in "the most remarkable example of courage I have ever seen." Col. Isbell was just 45 years old but to young soldiers trying to take the Korean hill he was "old." (AP Wirephoto)

GOP Win Means End Of Controls, Truman Asserts

EN ROUTE WITH TRUMAN, Oct. 21 (AP) — President Truman, drawing some of the biggest crowds of his career, blasted Dwight D. Eisenhower across New Jersey and Pennsylvania today in an all-out drive to capture the working man's vote for Adlai Stevenson.

He wound up an exhausing day with a Pottsville, Pa., speech declaring it is a "dead sure cinch" that the Republicans will wipe out all price and rent controls if they get into office in the Nov. 4 election.

Truman was mad, and he frankly acknowledged that Eisenhower was getting under his skin with talk of "Democratic high prices."

Truman Outdraws Ike

He moved into the hard coal country with a free-swinging counterattack on Republicans in Congress who voted against his controls proposals.

In all the campaigning he has done this year, Truman has seen nothing like the huge, cheering crowds that pressed in on his motorcade as it wound through the big North Jersey centers of Jersey City and Newark about noon today on the way to Philadelphia and Pennsylvania points north and west.

Bands blared, confetti cascaded down, flag-waving school children walled the streets.

Eisenhower, touring New Jersey in the reverse direction from Truman's attracted smaller crowds when he passed through the same region last Friday evening.

Ike Accused Of Double Talk

Police estimated some 5,000 turned out at Trenton, the New Jersey capital, to hear the President say that Eisenhower talked in the South "just like a Dixiecrat," in the East like a "liberal Republican" and in the Midwest like "an isolationist Republican."

The crowd was a lot bigger at Camden, estimated by Police Capt. Anthony Skolski at 12,000. Last week Eisenhower attracted a police-estimated 10,000 there, and was greeted with both boos and cheers.

Tonight Truman headed into the anthracite producing section of Eastern Pennsylvania at the outset of a three-day bid to swing the Keystone State's 32 electoral votes —which he lost four years ago to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey—back into the Democratic column.

TEHRAN, Iran, Oct. 21 (AP) — An international anti-locust conference opened here today attended by representatives from 13 countries, including the U. S. and Russia. The conference will discuss closer collaboration in locust control.

Morse Declined Post In Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Sen. Wayne Morse (R-Ore) said today he turned down a Truman administration offer of a "very high post" several months ago.

He made the statement to clarify a remark made in a telephone interview with the Portland Oregonian yesterday. The newspaper had taken the remark as an intimation of an offer from representatives of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower seeking Morse's support for the GOP presidential nominee. Morse has shifted over to support Democrat Adlai Stevenson.

In today's interview the senator said the Democratic proposal was what he had in mind when he mentioned an offer of a high position, and the Oregonian's interpretation was a mistake.

Morse would not say what job he was offered. However, a source close to the senator's affairs, asking not to be identified, said it was the attorney generalship and the offer came last December 20.

The Senator said he turned the offer down because he did not believe a Republican ought to serve in a Democratic administration.

Buried Light Bulb Burns 10 Years

YAKIMA, Wash., Oct. 21 (AP) — A 25-watt light bulb was found burning after burial for 10 years under 18 inches of rock and asphalt at the Yakima airport.

It was once part of a marker system. Airport Manager Burgess Carratt said the bulb, encased in a glass protector, apparently was covered during wartime improvements. It was uncovered during improvement work.

World Trade Way To Peace, Adlai Believes

Won't Be Found In "Give-Aways"

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson declared tonight that the answer to world peace "cannot be found in an international give-away program."

The Democratic presidential nominee, speaking on a nation-wide television and radio program at the inception of a 4,221-mile final campaign swing, said that instead the solution of world trade problems may promise a greater chance for peace.

The Illinois governor said that military force alone will not bring the world to tranquility. Instead, he said the free nations must strike at the "basic roots" of the world's ills.

Concerned About War

He defined these as "poverty, ignorance and political instability."

"The answers to these are not to be found in any international give-away program," he said. "A great part of the answer lies in trade."

As the father of three sons, he said that he is deeply concerned about the Korean War and world conditions generally.

"I know that war is harder upon women than upon men, that it outrages their profoundest feelings about life, the home, the heart," he declared.

"Who, then, would not be animated by a passion for peace? Who would not want to so order it that mothers shall have their children, wives their husbands, and girls their sweethearts, instead of surrendering them to war."

Lauds Point Four Program

"Peace is the end toward which I, like you, would move with all of the strength of mind and body. But peace, in a savagely hostile world, is not to be had just for the asking."

Stevenson said that the U. S. cannot go on indefinitely exporting dollars abroad.

He lauded the Point Four program as "one of President Truman's most farsighted proposals."

Stevenson, starting a 4,221-mile whistle stop tour, told a home state audience he hopes Illinois does as well by him in his bid for the presidency as it did when he ran for governor.

Addressing a cheering train-side audience at Decatur, Ill., the Democratic presidential nominee said he believed his campaign for the White House is "going very well."

Red Shell Kills 7 On U. S. Warship

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Navy announced today that seven men were killed and one wounded yesterday when Communist shore fire hit the destroyer-escort Lewis off the east coast of Korea.

The Lewis was hit by two 75 millimeter shells when she moved in close to the port of Wonsan to protect two South Korean minesweepers under fire from four to six Communist guns.

Returning the enemy fire, the Lewis spread a smoke screen to cover the small Korean vessels.

The first enemy shell struck her forward fire room on the right side piercing one boiler. This shell killed six men. A seventh died later of burns.

The shell which exacted most of the damage and accounted for all the deaths did not explode, the Navy said. It was later recovered and dropped overboard.

Tenth Of U. S. Revenue Since 1945 Used For Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—The United States has loaned or given over a tenth of its national revenue in the past seven years as foreign aid to friends and former friends.

This was disclosed in a roundup of foreign aid by the Department of Commerce monthly publication "Current Business." It said net foreign aid from mid-1945 to mid-1952 amounted to 35 billion dollars.

That was 11.3 per cent of the United States' 308 billion dollars federal revenue in the seven years, and 10.6 per cent of national expenditures—329 billion dollars—in that time.

Congress authorized foreign aid in the current fiscal year—ending next June 30—of nearly $5,800,000,000. That would raise the total to over 40 billion dollars by mid-1953.

Friends, former enemies, now friends, and former friends in every part of the globe have been recipients of this greatest outpouring of help in the world's history.

Nearly a third of the total aid in the seven years ended last June 30 was in the form of loans, which recipients agreed to repay.

Four Pivotal Middle Atlantic States, Including Maryland, Seen Edging Bit More Toward GOP

Harvard Students Halt Ike Cavalcade

A state policeman kneels on hood of car carrying Gen. Eisenhower in a vain effort to break a path through a pushing, shoving mob, largely made up of Harvard students, that stopped the Ike campaign entourage in its tracks in Harvard Square, Cambridge, Mass., yesterday. The cavalcade had to be rerouted after 20 minutes. Ike waves to students as Christian Herter, Massachusetts GOP candidate for governor, holds hat.

Newsmen Feel New York Race Has Tightened

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP) — Four of the five pivotal Middle Atlantic states—Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware—now are regarded by editors and political writers as edging a bit more toward the GOP than they were six weeks ago.

In the fifth—New York, with 45 electoral votes—the consensus of newsmen participating in an Associated Press survey is that the race has tightened since Labor Day. Their combined opinion is that Democratic Presidential Nominee Adlai E. Stevenson has closed some of the gap but that Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower still has a fairly comfortable margin.

Bunched together in the five states are 105 electoral votes and a rich political prize—two-fifths of the 266 votes required to clinch the presidential election Nov. 4.

Maryland Leans Toward GOP

The combined view of newsmen taking part in this second survey—the first was made some six weeks ago—is that all those 105 votes still would line up for Gen. Eisenhower if the election were held today. New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey are considered fairly sure to vote Republican, as they see it. Maryland and Delaware are listed nearer the doubtful column but bending toward the GOP.

Yet many of those participating in the survey sounded this note of caution: Heavy registrations of new voters could upset calculations for any or all the states. There just isn't any sure way of gauging where the new votes will land.

The professional politicians differ, too, on what a heavy registration and record vote might signify. Democrats contend a big vote always favors them; Republicans argue that large registrations this time mean people want a change and are getting ready to turn out and vote for one.

New Votes Major Factor

In a tight race, the new votes might be a major or even a conclusive factor in determining whether a state backs Eisenhower or Stevenson.

Insofar as newsmen manning the rods and transits for the mid-October survey consider all the Middle Atlantic states likely to go solidly Republican, results are just what they were in earlier soundings around Labor Day.

In New York, however, the combined estimate of editors is that Eisenhower would win by some 277,000 votes if the election were held today, whereas the first survey estimated the margin at perhaps 360,000.

The shift is attributed in large measure to a reappraisal of the showing the Progressive party candidate, Vincent Hallinan, may make. In New York City, Hallinan now is expected to collect a larger city vote. But newsmen believe his vote upstate will be negligible.

Elsewhere in the Middle Atlantic area, editors say Eisenhower generally has picked up a little political power in the weeks since the first survey.

Says No Work Until Men Get Full Pay Hike

Blasts WSB, Saying Industry Can Appeal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP) — John L. Lewis, rebuffing a plea that he order 322,000 striking soft coal miners back to work, today accused the Wage Stabilization Board of trying to steal "milk money" from miners' children.

This indicated a possibly prolonged strike over the board's decision to slice 40 cents off the $1.90 daily wage increase provided in a contract Lewis recently obtained from the operators. The board held that the increase was in violation of the government's anti-inflation rules.

Replying to the operators' request that he end the walkout, Lewis declared the men would work when they get the full $1.90.

A total of 322,000 of them were idle today, and the coal-carrying railroads began to lay off hundreds of their employees. However, the nation as a whole won't feel the squeeze for some time, since in general the supply of already-mined coal is sufficient to last 10 weeks or so.

WSB Chairman Ridiculed

The Lewis attack on the WSB came in a letter to Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, who had made the back-to-work request. Lewis ridiculed Wage Board Chairman Archibald Cox as a "little Harvard professor" and accused him of "contemptible action."

Lewis said that Cox, three other public members of the board and four industry members whom he called "ruffians" representing the National Association of Manufacturers, formed a "cabal to steal 40 cents a day from each mine worker."

Lewis wrote Moses: "Naturally miners resent such attempted thievery. Miners are people, Mr. Moses. They have children. Children need milk. The 40 cents would buy milk each day. You of all men should know that the mineworkers will fight to protect the milk supply of their families."

Lewis' Blast Brings Reply

Replying to Lewis, Herbert M. Kelley, executive assistant to industry members of the Wage Board, said:

"Mr. Lewis has never publicly before acknowledged even the existence of the Wage Stabilization Board. This would seem strange in view of the intimate details, all of them wholly untruthful, which he revealed about the board's membership today."

Lewis was reported to have called his 230-man policy committee to Washington for a strategy session tomorrow, but there was no official confirmation.

There had been some talk that if Lewis and the industry wanted to they might legally renegotiate their contract in such a way that the 40 cents could be paid to the miners in "fringe" benefits such as increased vacation pay.

But today's letter with its fighting words appeared to rule that out.

Reds Push ROKs Off Highest Point On Sniper Ridge

SEOUL, Wednesday, Oct. 22. (AP)—Two Chinese Red battalions today drove South Koreans off the highest point on Sniper Ridge in a battle of bayonets and hand grenades.

South Koreans quickly opened a counterattack seeking to win back the height, Pinpoint Hill, in Central Korea.

The height has been lost and re-won before by the South Koreans since the Allied limited offensive opened Oct. 14.

Third Attack In 12 Hours

The Reds battled to the top of Pinpoint today during their third attack on Sniper Ridge in 12 hours. An earlier report that the South Koreans had beaten off the third assault proved incorrect.

A front line dispatch said the Reds forced the South Koreans to withdraw from Pinpoint to the south slope of Sniper Ridge at 6:10 a. m.

At noon, the South Koreans opened a counterattack with bayonets and grenades. An American officer with the South Koreans said the fighting in mud and fog was the most intense he had ever seen.

Reds Infiltrate ROK Positions

At 6:45 last night, a force of Reds variously estimated at from 900 to 1,500 charged up the slippery, muddy slopes on the Central Korea front but withdrew after an hour's action.

Shortly before last midnight, about 300 Reds renewed the attack in rain and fog. They got close enough for a half hour of hand-to-hand fighting before pulling back.

During the daybreak assault, one group of Reds infiltrated to the rear of the Republic of Korea Second Division defenders, AP Correspondent John Fujii reported.

This group surprised artillery observers and battalion officers watching the hand-to-hand struggle. The observers got out of the there quick.

Chiang Calls For West Aid To Retake China

TAIPEH, Formosa, Oct. 21 (AP) — Chiang Kai-Shek today endorsed a manifesto from the Kuomintang — Nationalist China's ruling political party—urging the West to "give us the tools and we will finish the job" of reconquering Red China.

The veteran Nationalist leader in an unprecedented general news conference made clear the manifesto rpresented his government's views and called for a common front of the East and West against communism.

Defense Ends Case

Final Arguments Tomorrow To Wind Up Grammer Trial

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Grammer murder trial ended today, except for final arguments Thursday. From there on, the life of George Edward Grammer lies in the hands of Judge Herman M. Moser, hearing the case without a jury at Grammer's request.

Grammer's attorney gave him the choice of taking the stand after Mathilda Mizibrocky told the court she planned to marry Grammer before she learned he had a wife and family. Grammer declined.

Basis Of State's Case

The state contended that Grammer killed his 33-year-old wife, Dorothy May, "with malice aforethought" and tried to make her death appear to be an accident so he would be free to marry Miss Mizibrocky, a trim, 28-year-old secretary at the United Nations headquarters in New York.

It based its case on:

1. Grammer's signed statement to police that he hit his wife with a piece of pipe on the night of Aug. 19 after five or six drinks, and

2. The testimony of Miss Mizibrocky, who testified that she thought religion was the only question keeping her and Grammer from being wed. She is a Catholic. Grammer is a Methodist.

The defense pictured Grammer throughout as a thoughtful, generous family man who was fond of his wife and three daughters. It attempted to portray Miss Mizibrocky as one to whom marriage discussions and overnight dates were not original topics.

Grammer testified on the witness stand that he "made up" the statement after being questioned for the second straight day so he could see his brother and go home and get some decent food and decent sleep.

The only witnesses called by Defense Attorney Anthony S. Federico were those who testified as to Grammer's character.

Two Eggs Tossed Toward Truman In Jersey Capital

EN ROUTE WITH TRUMAN, Oct. 21 (AP)—Two eggs were pitched in the general direction of President Truman today as he made a campaign talk to a crowd in Trenton, New Jersey's capital.

They landed at least 25 feet from the President. He apparently didn't see either one.

Russia Rebuffed By U. N. Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 21. (AP)—The United States and the Western majority rebuffed two attempts today by Russia to have Red China and North Korea take part in U. N. General Assembly debate on germ warfare charges against the U. S.

Disregarding repeated cries by Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko that the U. S. was taking a "cowardly" attitude, the Assembly voted 46 to 5 Soviet bloc) against a Russian proposal to dispatch invitations immediately to the Communist nonmembers of the U. N.

Earlier in the day U. S. Ambassador Ernest A. Gross succeeded in choking off debate on the proposed invitations in the Steering Committee, contending that the 60-nation Political Committee was the place to talk about such a move.

A resolution offered by the United States for the U. N. to set up a commission to investigate the charges of germ warfare touched off an explosive debate. Gromyko said he did not oppose the resolution provided the U. N. invited the Red Chinese and the North Koreans to take part in it here.

Fireworks Explosion Blows Roof Off Plant

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Oct. 21 (AP)—An explosion in a fireworks plant here today blew the roof off a frame building and set fire to two other wooden structures nearby.

Ten workers were routed from the burning plant, but none was reported injured.

Chief G. Robert Pennington of the Havre de Grace Volunteer Fire Company, said the damage was in excess of $20,000.

Have Sinatras Separated? Ava Declines Any Comment

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Oct. 21 (AP)—Ava Gardner refused today to confirm or deny snowballing reports that she and Frank Sinatra underwent an explosive separation over the weekend.

Since yesterday there has been a stream of second-hand reports that the charmer and her crooner husband split up with plenty of fireworks at Sinatra's Palm Springs house. This afternoon Miss Gardner showed up for a few minutes at her Hollywood studio.

Asked by a studio representative if she cared to comment, she said: "I have nothing whatever to say about the matter."

Apparently Lana Turner was somewhere on the edges of the squabble but she couldn't be located. Reports of the tiff were carried by newspapers in Los Angeles and elsewhere, without and direct quotes from the principals.

The New York Post columnist, Earl Wilson, printed the word that Frankie Boy and Ava had a razzle-dazzle fight in which Sinatra called police to put Miss Gardner, Miss Turner and other friends out of his home here.

Wilson said Sinatra returned from a TV show Saturday night to find Lana, his former girl friend, and wife Ava "cutting him up."

Three Lives Lost In Florida Storm

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 21 (AP) — One of the worst northeast storms in years swept Florida today, sinking three vessels and leaving many others in distress. At least three lives were reported lost.

Winds lashed Atlantic and Gulf waters into dangerous waves and the Weather Bureau urged small craft around the state to exercise extreme caution.

More than four inches of rain fell in one section of the rich farming area around Lake Okeechobee, already saturated with recent rains. The St. Lucie Canal gates were opened to relieve flood conditions.

Th Coast Guard said three fishermen apparently drowned when the 69-foot fishing vessel Sea Farer went down off False Cape, near Cape Canaveral on the east coast.

Korea Rotation Point Boost Is Overruled

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Lovett said today the Pentagon has overruled an order by the Far East Command extending the period troops must serve in the line in Korea before becoming eligible for rotation back home.

Lovett told a news conference that the countermanding order was sent Oct. 7 by Secretary of the Army Pace. He said it instructed Gen. Mark Clark to reinstate 36 points as the number required for rotation eligibility. The Far East Command on Sept. 17 raised the eligibility total to 38 points.

This was disclosed in a roundup of foreign aid by the Department of Commerce monthly publication "Current Business." It said net foreign aid from mid-1945 to mid-1952 amounted to 35 billion dollars.

That was 11.3 per cent of the United States' 308 billion dollars federal revenue in the seven years, and 10.6 per cent of national expenditures—329 billion dollars—in that time.

Congress authorized foreign aid in the current fiscal year—ending next June 30—of nearly $5,800,000,000. That would raise the total to over 40 billion dollars by mid-1953.

Friends, former enemies, now friends, and former friends in every part of the globe have been recipients of this greatest outpouring of help in the world's history.

Nearly a third of the total aid in the seven years ended last June 30 was in the form of loans, which recipients agreed to repay.

Four Pivotal Middle Atlantic States, Including Maryland, Seen Edging Bit More Toward GOP

Harvard Students Halt Ike Cavalcade

A state policeman kneels on hood of car carrying Gen. Eisenhower in a vain effort to break a path through a pushing, shoving mob, largely made up of Harvard students, that stopped the Ike campaign entourage in its tracks in Harvard Square, Cambridge, Mass., yesterday. The cavalcade had to be rerouted after 20 minutes. Ike waves to students as Christian Herter, Massachusetts GOP candidate for governor, holds hat.

Newsmen Feel New York Race Has Tightened

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP) — Four of the five pivotal Middle Atlantic states—Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware—now are regarded by editors and political writers as edging a bit more toward the GOP than they were six weeks ago.

In the fifth—New York, with 45 electoral votes—the consensus of newsmen participating in an Associated Press survey is that the race has tightened since Labor Day. Their combined opinion is that Democratic Presidential Nominee Adlai E. Stevenson has closed some of the gap but that Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower still has a fairly comfortable margin.

Bunched together in the five states are 105 electoral votes and a rich political prize—two-fifths of the 266 votes required to clinch the presidential election Nov. 4.

Maryland Leans Toward GOP

The combined view of newsmen taking part in this second survey—the first was made some six weeks ago—is that all those 105 votes still would line up for Gen. Eisenhower if the election were held today. New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey are considered fairly sure to vote Republican, as they see it. Maryland and Delaware are listed nearer the doubtful column but bending toward the GOP.

Yet many of those participating in the survey sounded this note of caution: Heavy registrations of new voters could upset calculations for any or all the states. There just isn't any sure way of gauging where the new votes will land.

The professional politicians differ, too, on what a heavy registration and record vote might signify. Democrats contend a big vote always favors them; Republicans argue that large registrations this time mean people want a change and are getting ready to turn out and vote for one.

New Votes Major Factor

In a tight race, the new votes might be a major or even a conclusive factor in determining whether a state backs Eisenhower or Stevenson.

Insofar as newsmen manning the rods and transits for the mid-October survey consider all the Middle Atlantic states likely to go solidly Republican, results are just what they were in earlier soundings around Labor Day.

In New York, however, the combined estimate of editors is that Eisenhower would win by some 277,000 votes if the election were held today, whereas the first survey estimated the margin at perhaps 360,000.

The shift is attributed in large measure to a reappraisal of the showing the Progressive party candidate, Vincent Hallinan, may make. In New York City, Hallinan now is expected to collect a larger city vote. But newsmen believe his vote upstate will be negligible.

Elsewhere in the Middle Atlantic area, editors say Eisenhower generally has picked up a little political power in the weeks since the first survey.

Says No Work Until Men Get Full Pay Hike

Blasts WSB, Saying Industry Can Appeal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP) — John L. Lewis, rebuffing a plea that he order 322,000 striking soft coal miners back to work, today accused the Wage Stabilization Board of trying to steal "milk money" from miners' children.

This indicated a possibly prolonged strike over the board's decision to slice 40 cents off the $1.90 daily wage increase provided in a contract Lewis recently obtained from the operators. The board held that the increase was in violation of the government's anti-inflation rules.

Replying to the operators' request that he end the walkout, Lewis declared the men would work when they get the full $1.90.

A total of 322,000 of them were idle today, and the coal-carrying railroads began to lay off hundreds of their employees. However, the nation as a whole won't feel the squeeze for some time, since in general the supply of already-mined coal is sufficient to last 10 weeks or so.

WSB Chairman Ridiculed

The Lewis attack on the WSB came in a letter to Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, who had made the back-to-work request. Lewis ridiculed Wage Board Chairman Archibald Cox as a "little Harvard professor" and accused him of "contemptible action."

Lewis said that Cox, three other public members of the board and four industry members whom he called "ruffians" representing the National Association of Manufacturers, formed a "cabal to steal 40 cents a day from each mine worker."

Lewis wrote Moses: "Naturally miners resent such attempted thievery. Miners are people, Mr. Moses. They have children. Children need milk. The 40 cents would buy milk each day. You of all men should know that the mineworkers will fight to protect the milk supply of their families."

Lewis' Blast Brings Reply

Replying to Lewis, Herbert M. Kelley, executive assistant to industry members of the Wage Board, said:

"Mr. Lewis has never publicly before acknowledged even the existence of the Wage Stabilization Board. This would seem strange in view of the intimate details, all of them wholly untruthful, which he revealed about the board's membership today."

Lewis was reported to have called his 230-man policy committee to Washington for a strategy session tomorrow, but there was no official confirmation.

There had been some talk that if Lewis and the industry wanted to they might legally renegotiate their contract in such a way that the 40 cents could be paid to the miners in "fringe" benefits such as increased vacation pay.

But today's letter with its fighting words appeared to rule that out.

Reds Push ROKs Off Highest Point On Sniper Ridge

SEOUL, Wednesday, Oct. 22. (AP)—Two Chinese Red battalions today drove South Koreans off the highest point on Sniper Ridge in a battle of bayonets and hand grenades.

South Koreans quickly opened a counterattack seeking to win back the height, Pinpoint Hill, in Central Korea.

The height has been lost and re-won before by the South Koreans since the Allied limited offensive opened Oct. 14.

Third Attack In 12 Hours

The Reds battled to the top of Pinpoint today during their third attack on Sniper Ridge in 12 hours. An earlier report that the South Koreans had beaten off the third assault proved incorrect.

A front line dispatch said the Reds forced the South Koreans to withdraw from Pinpoint to the south slope of Sniper Ridge at 6:10 a. m.

At noon, the South Koreans opened a counterattack with bayonets and grenades. An American officer with the South Koreans said the fighting in mud and fog was the most intense he had ever seen.

Reds Infiltrate ROK Positions

At 6:45 last night, a force of Reds variously estimated at from 900 to 1,500 charged up the slippery, muddy slopes on the Central Korea front but withdrew after an hour's action.

Shortly before last midnight, about 300 Reds renewed the attack in rain and fog. They got close enough for a half hour of hand-to-hand fighting before pulling back.

During the daybreak assault, one group of Reds infiltrated to the rear of the Republic of Korea Second Division defenders, AP Correspondent John Fujii reported.

This group surprised artillery observers and battalion officers watching the hand-to-hand struggle. The observers got out of the there quick.

Final Arguments Tomorrow To Wind Up Grammer Trial

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Grammer murder trial ended today, except for final arguments Thursday. From there on, the life of George Edward Grammer lies in the hands of Judge Herman M. Moser, hearing the case without a jury at Grammer's request.

Grammer's attorney gave him the choice of taking the stand after Mathilda Mizibrocky told the court she planned to marry Grammer before she learned he had a wife and family. Grammer declined.

Basis Of State's Case

The state contended that Grammer killed his 33-year-old wife, Dorothy May, "with malice aforethought" and tried to make her death appear to be an accident so he would be free to marry Miss Mizibrocky, a trim, 28-year-old secretary at the United Nations headquarters in New York.

It based its case on:

1. Grammer's signed statement to police that he hit his wife with a piece of pipe on the night of Aug. 19 after five or six drinks, and

2. The testimony of Miss Mizibrocky, who testified that she thought religion was the only question keeping her and Grammer from being wed. She is a Catholic. Grammer is a Methodist.

The defense pictured Grammer throughout as a thoughtful, generous family man who was fond of his wife and three daughters. It attempted to portray Miss Mizibrocky as one to whom marriage discussions and overnight dates were not original topics.

Grammer testified on the witness stand that he "made up" the statement after being questioned for the second straight day so he could see his brother and go home and get some decent food and decent sleep.

The only witnesses called by Defense Attorney Anthony S. Federico were those who testified as to Grammer's character.

EN ROUTE WITH TRUMAN, Oct. 21 (AP)—Two eggs were pitched in the general direction of President Truman today as he made a campaign talk to a crowd in Trenton, New Jersey's capital.

One of the eggs struck a girl reporter and another hit a photographer.

Russia Rebuffed By U. N. Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 21. (AP)—The United States and the Western majority rebuffed two attempts today by Russia to have Red China and North Korea take part in U. N. General Assembly debate on germ warfare charges against the U. S.

Disregarding repeated cries by Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko that the U. S. was taking a "cowardly" attitude, the Assembly voted 46 to 5 Soviet bloc) against a Russian proposal to dispatch invitations immediately to the Communist nonmembers of the U. N.

Earlier in the day U. S. Ambassador Ernest A. Gross succeeded in choking off debate on the proposed invitations in the Steering Committee, contending that the 60-nation Political Committee was the place to talk about such a move.

A resolution offered by the United States for the U. N. to set up a commission to investigate the charges of germ warfare touched off an explosive debate. Gromyko said he did not oppose the resolution provided the U. N. invited the Red Chinese and the North Koreans to take part in it here.

Have Sinatras Separated? Ava Declines Any Comment

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Oct. 21 (AP)—Ava Gardner refused today to confirm or deny snowballing reports that she and Frank Sinatra underwent an explosive separation over the weekend.

Since yesterday there has been a stream of second-hand reports that the charmer and her crooner husband split up with plenty of fireworks at Sinatra's Palm Springs house. This afternoon Miss Gardner showed up for a few minutes at her Hollywood studio.

Asked by a studio representative if she cared to comment, she said: "I have nothing whatever to say about the matter."

Apparently Lana Turner was somewhere on the edges of the squabble but she couldn't be located. Reports of the tiff were carried by newspapers in Los Angeles and elsewhere, without and direct quotes from the principals.

The New York Post columnist, Earl Wilson, printed the word that Frankie Boy and Ava had a razzle-dazzle fight in which Sinatra called police to put Miss Gardner, Miss Turner and other friends out of his home here.

Wilson said Sinatra returned from a TV show Saturday night to find Lana, his former girl friend, and wife Ava "cutting him up."

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 21 (AP) — One of the worst northeast storms in years swept Florida today, sinking three vessels and leaving many others in distress. At least three lives were reported lost.

Winds lashed Atlantic and Gulf waters into dangerous waves and the Weather Bureau urged small craft around the state to exercise extreme caution.

Korea Rotation Point Boost Is Overruled

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Lovett said today the Pentagon has overruled an order by the Far East Command extending the period troops must serve in the line in Korea before becoming eligible for rotation back home.

Lovett told a news conference that the countermanding order was sent Oct. 7 by Secretary of the Army Pace. He said it instructed Gen. Mark Clark to reinstate 36 points as the number required for rotation eligibility. The Far East Command on Sept. 17 raised the eligibility total to 38 points.

Justice Dept. Hit For Abandoning Liquor Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—House investigators criticized the Justice Department today for abandoning an anti-trust probe of the liquor industry. They said they found "an inference" that political contributions played a part in the decision.

From 1948 to 1951, individuals connected with big liquor companies contributed between $155,550 and $165,550 to the Democratic and Republican parties, a House judiciary subcommittee reported.

It estimated that between $112,450 and $120,450 went to the Democrats and between $43,100 and $45,100 went to the Republicans.

While there is an inference that donations had some connection with the "tapering off" of the anti-trust investigation in 1949, the committee said, "the evidence is not conclusive." Committee aides declined to tell reporters on what the inference was based.

The report is one of a series being made by the committee on its long investigation of administrative practices in the Justice Department.

NAIROBI, Kenya, Oct. 21 (AP) — Mass arrests today launched a British drive to crush the Mau Mau, a fanatic, secret native society campaigning with torch and spear to drive white men from this East African colony.

The Fusiliers gave a show of force with a march through Nairobi and nearby African settlements with bayonetted rifles.

Man Who Invented Canning Process Gets Recognition

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—This capital city is cluttered with statues to men whose heroic deeds have been forgotten by everyone but historians. Yet nowhere is there a statue to the man whose invention is as close to every American household as its pantry shelf.

That man is Nicholas Appert, a Frenchman who discovered how to put and keep food in a tin can.

The National Canners Association is busy saying thank you this week, the 200th anniversary of Appert's birth. Today, the association presented the French Embassy with a memorial plaque.

The plaque will be hung in Appert's old home town, Massy, a Paris suburb.

Appert was a French chef, baker, confectioner and brewer who spent years developing canning. He not only invented the process; he ran the world's first cannery.

Napoleon gave him a medal and 12,000 francs, but he has been neglected historically.

WESTMINSTER, Md., Oct. 21 (AP)—Carroll County Commissioners announced today that they have approved a $50 bonus payable next January for their teachers and a $100 increase in the minimum salary for the 1953-54 school year.

The announcement followed a meeting of the commissioners with "a representative group of Carroll County teachers."

The bonus payments, totaling $16,500, are to come from an anticipated surplus, the commissioners said.

Man Who Invented Canning Process Gets Recognition

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—This capital city is cluttered with statues to men whose heroic deeds have been forgotten by everyone but historians. Yet nowhere is there a statue to the man whose invention is as close to every American household as its pantry shelf.

That man is Nicholas Appert, a Frenchman who discovered how to put and keep food in a tin can.

The National Canners Association is busy saying thank you this week, the 200th anniversary of Appert's birth. Today, the association presented the French Embassy with a memorial plaque.

The plaque will be hung in Appert's old home town, Massy, a Paris suburb.

Appert was a French chef, baker, confectioner and brewer who spent years developing canning. He not only invented the process; he ran the world's first cannery.

Napoleon gave him a medal and 12,000 francs, but he has been neglected historically.

City Firemen Check Automobile Blaze

South End firemen answered a call at 8:57 p. m. yesterday when an automobile caught fire on Creek Road.

Some damage, firemen said, was caused when the wiring of an auto belonging to G. R. Alexander, RD 2, city, caught fire. The blaze was out on arrival, firemen added.

There are more than 500 species of the British spider.

For President
DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

DEWITT S. HYDE

California Could Decide It

If the 1952 Presidential election should be close, it could be decided by the result in California. The Golden State has 32 electoral votes this year, surpassed only by New York (45) and equaled only by Pennsylvania.

The last previous close Presidential election, that of 1916, was decided by California, in that Charles E. Hughes, Republican, would have been elected if California hadn't gone for President Wilson. It is true that Wilson would have lost if he hadn't carried each of certain other states, but the California majority for Wilson was less than 4,000 out of 999,000 votes cast. Also, the final returns in the state were delayed, giving rise to the wisecrack that Hughes was President for three days.

In 1948 California went for Truman by only 17,865 out of 4,021,538 votes cast, with Henry A. Wallace on the Progressive ticket getting 190,381. Los Angeles County and San Francisco each went for Truman over Dewey by about 8,000, San Diego County for Dewey by a slight edge. In the 42 counties in the northern half of the state, Truman had a majority over Dewey of 20,000; in the 16 in the southern half, Dewey had a 2,000 majority over Truman.

The Republicans claim the edge in California because Senator Nixon, GOP vice presidential nominee, is popular there, especially since his television and radio defense of his special fund; because popular Governor Warren is campaigning for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket; because Eisenhower is for, Stevenson against, state ownership of marginal-sea oil; because Eisenhower drew especially large crowds in the state.

The Democrats argue that Nixon is less popular in 1952 than was Warren, the GOP vice presidential nominee in 1948; that the impact of the Nixon broadcast will have worn off by election day; that most of the rank-and-file voters are uninterested in the oil issue; that almost all the Wallace voters of 1948 will be Stevenson voters of 1952.

The New Voters

About 7½ million civilians, according to Census Bureau estimates, will be for the first time old enough (21 in 47 states, 18 in Georgia) this year to vote in a Presidential election. And the Truman popular majority over Dewey in 1948 was only 2.1 million.

As against this 7.5 million gross increase in the civilian population of voting age must be put a decrease, due largely to death, of about 4 million over the four years. This doesn't, of course, mean that the net national increase of about 3.5 million will be reflected among the states proportionately to their respective populations. This is a nation of considerable shifting of population, even within one year.

The Census Bureau believes that three states—Maine, Massachusetts, Washington—have actually a smaller civilian population of voting age in 1952 than in 1948. Also, that eight other states have done little more than hold their own—Vermont, Rhode Island, West Virginia, Ohio, North Dakota, Kentucky, Tennessee, Oregon. The highest increases proportionate to total population are ascribed, in order, to Arizona, New Mexico, Florida, Colorado, Nevada, Utah, North Carolina, Nebraska, New Jersey.

Each of the major political parties naturally claims for itself most of the 1952 voters of voting age for the first time.

The Democrats argue that they are the "liberal" party, and that young persons are less conservative than their elders. The Republicans argue that the Korean War is especially unpopular among young men subject to the draft and among their families, and that the new voters, unlike many of the older ones who died after 1948, have few or no memories of the depression under President Hoover.

No Third Party

No minor party will poll enough votes this year to muddy the election waters. The 1948 election produced two third parties, each of which polled over a million votes.

The States' Rights Democrats, running Governor Thurmond of South Carolina for President, received 1,169,021 votes. Of these, 646,000 (in round numbers) came from the four Southern states carried by Thurmond, 509,000 from seven other Southern States. Thurmond got 39 of the 531 electoral votes.

The Progressive party, running Henry A. Wallace for President, polled a total of 1,156,103 votes, of which almost one-half, 509,559, came from New York, and more than 15 per cent, 190,381, from California. Wallace got votes in 45 of the 48 states, but failed to run first or second in any of them. Samuel Lubell, author of the "Future of American Politics," reports that "perhaps four of every five" Wallace voters of 1948 will vote for Stevenson this year.

The 39 Thurmond electoral votes would have sufficed to throw the 1948 election into the House of Representatives if a few more popular votes for Dewey in any two of three states—California, Illinois, Ohio—had put those two states in the Republican column. If all three had gone for Dewey instead of for Truman, Dewey would have been elected by a majority of two electoral votes.

Enough votes were cast for Wallace to keep Truman from carrying New York, and possibly that goes also for Maryland and Michigan. This year none of the minor parties is expected to change the result in a single state, although in several states a number of votes may turn up for General MacArthur.

Gambling Stamps

More and more it looks as if the federal gambling taxes are a failure. The yield from them has fallen far short of what they were figured to produce when enacted by Congress.

Last May a federal judge in Philadelphia ruled part of the act unconstitutional on the ground it had too much the smell of a police measure in the guise of a tax.

The Supreme Court has now consented to review the decision of this federal judge. Government officials are reported to be lukewarm toward the entire piece of legislation.

Enzymes And Viruses

A promising remedy against shingles (herpes zoster), chickenpox, and neuritis is now in the offing. It is protamide, an enzyme obtained from the glandular layer of hog stomach. No one knows why it works yet early reports are most encouraging.

The diseases in which protamide is being used are more annoying than serious. Therefore, the drug is not looked upon as life-saving but should it continue to maintain its present reputation many sufferers will not need to go through weeks or months of distress. Shingles, for example, is rarely if ever fatal but the disorder is painful and often disabling. The same can be said of neuritis which in addition may produce muscular weakness and paralysis. The lesions of chickenpox are far from pretty when in full bloom. They seldom last more than four or five days and usually disappear without leaving a scar; but the lesions tend to itch and scratching creates a problem.

The first clew to the efficacy of protamide came when the remedy proved helpful in herpes zoster. Because there is a close relationship between the virus of that disease and the virus of chickenpox, it seemed reasonable to assume that both culprits would respond to the enzyme. This idea occurred to the Doctors Lehrer of Sandusky, O., and they administered the product to 14 youngsters with chickenpox whose ages varied from 5 months to 12 years. The response was gratifying, particularly when the substance was injected during the first few days of the illness. There was prompt relief of itching. The physicians were of the opinion that the lesions disappeared sooner and the course of the disease was shortened, whereas the mothers felt that the youngsters were more comfortable after the treatment. They were able to be up and about at an earlier date and went back to school sooner than usual.

Dr. Richard T. Smith of Philadelphia decided to try the compound on a group of patients with neuritis who had responded poorly or not at all to vitamins, physical therapy, and other remedies. To his amazement, gradual improvement was noted in some sufferers within three to six weeks. He studied the records and found that those who were helped told of having encountered a moderate to severe upper respiratory or virus infection from one to three weeks preceding the onset of neuritis. In contrast, evidence showed that in those who were not benefitted the involved nerve was being pressed upon by the jagged edges of an arthritic spine or by a slipped disk. At any rate, he continued his studies and over a period of 26 months treated 104 patients with the inflammatory type of neuritis. All had previous virus infections and in none was there any indication of pressure on the nerve roots.

The basic treatment was a five day course of daily protamide injections into the muscle. If there was relief at the end of this time, the remedy was stopped; otherwise it was continued for another five days. Pain disappeared completely in 84 patients (80.7 per cent); of these, all symptoms vanished in 68 whereas 16 had residual numbness and tingling that disappeared in time. Again, the preparation was more valuable when injected during the first few days of the illness. These results speak for themselves considering that the normal course of neuritis is three to six weeks.

APPEARANCE OF PAIN

Mrs. E. writes: I have heard that cancer does not produce pain until late in the disease. Is this correct?

REPLY

In general, yes. But pain may appear much earlier when the malignancy attacks bone or nerve tissue.

BACK TO WORK

M. W. writes: Can a person return to his job after a coronary attack?

REPLY

The majority can and do. Statistics show that from one-half to two-thirds are back at work within a year.

COULD DO IT

Mrs. U. writes: Could tuberculosis cause miscarriage in the fifth month?

REPLY

This is a possibility. Pregnancy aggravates tuberculosis and when miscarriage occurs it may be looked upon as an attempt by nature to keep the disease under control.

[illegible] TUMORS

[illegible] writes: Is multiple myeloma a form of cancer?

REPLY

This bone disorder is a near relative of cancer but is not as vicious. The myelomas represent tumor-like lesions that develop in bone, especially in the spine, sternum, ribs, and skull.

SEASONAL DISCOMFORT

L. R. writes: Would you know any reason why I should develop sinus disease every spring? My nose clogs up and I feel so sick I lose 15 to 20 pounds.

REPLY

When the nose goes beserk in the spring, conditions to suspect are allergy to pollens or to dust. In other instances, swimming is responsible; water irritates the membranes or reactivates old sinus infection.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Republican Leaders Pressured Senator Morse To Stay With Eisenhower; Oregon Senator Realized Party Bolt Meant Political Suicide

WASHINGTON — Republican leaders put all sorts of pressure on GOP Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon to keep him from bolting to Stevenson. Shortly before Morse issued his statement deserting the Republican ticket, Senatqr Fred Seaton of Nebraska, who has been close to Morse in the Senate, telephoned him from New York, inviting him to travel on the Eisenhower train. Morse declined.

For more than a month prior to this, however, a succession of Republican leaders, including ex-Governor Stassen of Minnesota, had come to see the senator from Oregon. One of them dropped in on Morse just after Eisenhower had endorsed Senator Jenner in Indiana.

"The general didn't want to make that endorsement," he explained. "After he saw Jenner he came back to his hotel and said, 'That---. I'd much rather have punched him in the nose.'"

This made Morse even less enthusiastic.

"That shows him up more than ever as a hypocrite," he exploded. "At the same time he said that, he also stood up and told the American people to vote for Jenner.

"He did the same thing at the surrender of Morningside Heights to Senator Taft."

"That was no surrender," replied the Eisenhower emissary. "That was arranged to save Taft's face."

"What!" exclaimed the senator from Oregon. "Why Eisenhower wasn't even given the courtesy of being at the press conference where Taft announced the terms of the surrender."

United GOP Front

The emissary argued that the general was merely trying to bring unity in the party. He said he had to appease some of the old guard and bring about a united front. "But," he continued, "you will be the man he'll call to the White House for consultation after he's elected."

"On the contrary," replied Morse, "if you read that Taft statement issued after the 'surrender,' you'll see that Eisenhower agreed not to discriminate against Taft people, and you know what that means. That means the Taft people will be running the party.

"I happen to have been the first Republican to come out for Eisenhower," Morse continued. "But this is not the Eisenhower I know. I can't be for this Eisenhower. Reach over and punch the cash register: 'No sale.'"

First efforts to keep Senator Morse in line occurred prior to Labor Day, when Eisenhower leaders wanted the Oregonian's help to swing the American Federation of Labor over to Eisenhower, or at least keep them from endorsing Stevenson. To this end, Governor Stassen, who wrote the general's speech delivered at the AFL convention, came down to Washington and spent 2½ hours with Morse. However, he made no headway.

"This man compromises with his principles," argued the senator. "He has deserted the liberal wing of the Republican party in order to get elected. And that's what you did too, Harold."

Stassen passed over this reference to the fact that he was once leader of GOP liberals. He urged that Morse come to New York and sit on the platform with Eisenhower when he addressed the AFL. But Morse said no.

"That would just show that I was giving my blessing to something I didn't agree with," he replied. "It's too late for me to advise you on the general's speech anyway. I've just been invited by Bill Green to answer it."

Morse And Labor

At this, Stassen nearly jumped out of his chair. After he returned to New York, however, another Eisenhower emissary came to Washington to urge Morse not to differ with Eisenhower in the AFL speech he was to make the following day.

"This is the hardest job I ever had to do," said the emissary.

"I'll make it easy for you," replied Morse. "Go back and tell headquarters that I've agreed not to change a single line of my speech. I had planned to rewrite it and make it 10 times tougher, but in view of your visit I won't change it."

The speech as written and later delivered, of course, was much tougher than Eisenhower leaders wanted.

Senator Morse's final decision to bolt the Republican party was made after Eisenhower toured New Jersey.

"When I read those speeches in New Jersey," Morse explained to friends, "and saw the general's claim that he hadn't deserted his principles, I couldn't stand it any longer. I told my wife I was going to sleep on it, then get up next morning and take myself completely out of the political picture. Next morning I felt the same way I did the night before.

"It's political suicide, I know," concluded Morse, "but I've got to live with myself no matter who's elected."

Protects Chicago Boss

A top congressional investigator has been fired for trying to cover up for Chicago's Democratic boss Jake Arvey.

Investigator Ralph Culver was kicked off the Chelf Committee two hours after it was discovered he had left Arvey's name out of a report.

Culver had been assigned to investigate the Justice Department's handling of the Pabst Brewing Company case. The beer company was in trouble for shipping spoiled grain across the Wisconsin state line, and Jake Arvey had tried to straighten it out with the Justice Department.

But Culver neglected to mention Arvey's name in his report.

After the ommission was brought to the committee's attention, Culver was fired outright. But the committee agreed not to tell the press, so as not to embarrass the congressman who had recommended Culver—Congressman Delaney of New York.

GOP Serves Cider

GOP National Chairman Arthur Summerfield blinked his eyes, then girnned broadly when an employe of the Hotel Washington needled him at a Republican rally:

"Better be careful. You're in enemy territory. This hotel is a stronghold of good Democrats. The help around here is solidly for Stevenson."

"I'll bet one or two drinks would change your minds," countered Summerfield.

The hotel employe, who was about to go off duty, was almost ready to test out Summerfield's theory until he learned that cider was the only beverage being served at the rally.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

It's Time For A Change .

One of the by-products of the present campaign is the variety of suggestions for changing our system of nomination and election. The proposals represent a normal reaction to a system which has become outmoded by the increase of population in the large cities and by radio and television.

The critics of the present methods of nomination and election usually disregard two factors which are of very great importance:

1. That the nomination of a candidate is strictly a party matter in which the general public can have no voice, if the two-party system is to continue;

2. That elections are, by the Constitution, within the province of each State, to be conducted by each state by whatever method the state chooses.

Any proposal for a change therefore has to take in these restrictions. The two-party system is a valuable institution because by this means dictatorship and tyranny are prevented and the dangers from demagoguery are supposed to be limited. Were there no two-party system, President Truman could have remained in office until he was removed by revolution, as is the practice in countries where a dictatorship is usual; or, he could appoint his successor, as Stalin is doing in Soviet Russia.

The heart of the two-party system is the selection of a candidate by a party convention, the delegates to which are chosen by partisans in each state, according to local rules. The employment of a national primary, which has been suggested, would place a limitation upon the rights of the states. It would be tantamount to holding two elections. As a matter of fact, the primary is already too costly to candidates.

Television has, in many respects, made the party convention appear to be ridiculous. The desire of some delegates to ask for a roll-call so that they can be made visible to the home folks has proved so wasteful of time and has focused attention on the poor quality of the delegations. Unless the secret ballot on voting machines is instituted in the convention, the people will lose confidence in the method altogether.

Another suggestion that has recently been advocated is permanent registration and the two-day election. Permanent registration actually exists in many places. I have now registered and voted in the same election district for 14 years. Each time, I have answered the same questions by the same clerks. This year I waited one hour in line to answer those same questions.

As to two-day voting, that would be useful in the big cities. In some states, the idea is bound to be rejected as unsuited to the circumstances of the place and the people. For instance, in the township of Sandisfield in Massachusetts, where I also live, there are only 300 families. The voting can be done in a few hours. Much of America is like that.

In the big cities, voting is becoming a real hardship because of the delay. A two-day election could be useful, if so devised that the ballots could be cast swiftly and that voters did not postpone their participation to the last moment of the second day.

On the other hand, there would have to be a universal agreement among the election officials of the 48 states, among newspapers and the radio, that no results would be published until the polls had finally been closed in every part of the country. It would be wrong to permit the first day's vote to influence the second day's vote.

Unfortunately there are many who still believe that they like to vote for the winner, which is to stultify the election to a horse race. Such people would be influenced by premature results.

Even without two-day voting, it would be preferable if results were announced two or three days after election day, but that idea will not prove popular. The people want to know the results. In the big cities, the two-day vote would only be practical if a moratorium were declared on election news for the two-day period. Otherwise, the news itself would become a device of electioneering.

Surely, our elections are too complex and too expensive. When this one is over, little thought will be given to this subject until 1956. Yet, something serious ought to be done to reform nominations and elections before then.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Far beyond election day, the damage done by President Truman in his misguided attempt to arouse race and religious prejudice in America will be remembered. For to accuse one political party and its nominee of religious prejudice and to ride to victory on the crest of such aroused passions would tend to approve religious bigotry as a vehicle for vote-getting in future political campaigns.

To understand the enormity of Mr. Truman's offense—and the failure of Governor Stevenson to repudiate the President's comments or to apologize for them to the American people—it is necessary to read exactly what the original utterance actually included. The occasion was a "mobilization conference" of the National Jewish Welfare Board—presumably a nonpartisan objective. Mr. Truman chose to make a political speech and, though he could not be present in person, the address, prepared in advance, was read by the assistant secretary of state for public affairs, Howland Sargeant.

In the first part of the speech, Mr. Truman explained the purpose of the meeting. He said:

Endorsed By Stevenson

"This meeting has been called to help the Jewish Welfare Board expand and intensify its welfare services to Jewish personnel in the uniform of the United States and to strengthen its efforts on behalf of the civilian Jewish communities."

Should such a meeting be utilized for a political speech? Mr. Truman had no hesitancy in doing so. He promptly launched into a partisan address, denouncing the so-called "national origins quota" system in determining immigration classifications. This system has been in the law since 1924, but never before has any President of the United States openly accused either a political party or nominee of being anti-Semitic or anti-Catholic just because some of the provisions of the law have been regarded by some groups as discriminatory. Actually the present law was sponsored by Senator McCarran, himself a devout Catholic. The National Catholic Welfare Conference approved the provisions of the law. As for most of the Jewish groups, they did not appear at the public hearings in opposition. Also 25 Democrats and 32 Republicans voted to override President Truman's veto. Governor Stevenson has endorsed the Democratic senators who did this—those up for election this year.

Senator Fulbright, Democrat, of Arkansas, voted for enactment of the McCarran law, and he is helping to manage Governor Stevenson's campaign. Senator MacFarland of Arizona, the Democratic party's leader in the Senate, voted for the McCarran bill and to override the Truman veto. Are they both exempt from the Truman denunciation?

Knowing all this not to be a party issue, Mr. Truman nevertheless declared that General Eisenhower had endorsed for re-election some Republican senators who had voted for the McCarran law. In truth, the Republican nominee endorsed all candidates as a matter of party harmony but came out himself for a complete revision of the McCarran law. Here follows the controversial statement by Mr. Truman:

"The Republican candidate for the Presidency cannot escape responsibility for his endorsements. He has had an attack of moral blindness, for today, he is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race' although he took a leading part in liberating Europe from their domination."

Boner For History

Thus, in effect, Mr. Truman called General Eisenhower pro-Nazi and in another part of his speech he added: "Anti-Semitism, anti-Catholicism, and anti-foreignism grow only in concealment. They have hidden themselves within the Republican party for years."

This paragraph will go down in history as a "boner" not unlike that which deefated James G. Blaine in 1894 when one of his visitors in a delegation said the Democratic party was the party of "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion." Mr. Blaine didn't catch the meaning of it at the time. The remark was, however, widely publicized and is believed to have persuaded Catholics to vote as a group in that election against the Republican nominee, who lost.

It could work in reverse. For the Jews of America do not wish to be catalogued as all voting for one party and neither do the Catholics. Groups which are in the minority have learned over the years to vote as Americans rather than as class-conscious religionists. There are in America many hidden anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic influences and, like the mischief-makers among Communists, they often play one group against the other and start such attacks in behalf of the very candidate they want to see beaten. Thus in the preconvention campaign there were attacks by anti-Semitic groups, many of them anonymous, which accused General Eisenhower of being pro-Jewish. His name was declared by them to be Jewish, although there wasn't the slightest foundation in fact for such a statement.

What President Truman has done is to feed the anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic forces in America more ammunition than they have been fed for decades. After the election is over, in the event that Governor Stevenson wins, the tirades will take on another complexion—Democrats will be assailed as anti-Protestant and pro-Jewish. This is the kind of thing Mr. Truman, as President of the United States and as an experienced hand in politics, should have known. But he chose not to discuss the McCarran law in an objective sense—there have been many good arguments made against its provisions—but to campaign on it in a voice of passion and religious prejudice openly seeking to gain votes for the Democratic ticket.

Used Vicious Language

Down the line, where the whispering thrives in a national political campaign the poison uttered by Mr. Truman will spread and the net result after election will be to start a wave of religious and racial bigotry—especially if the Republicans lose the election. Mr. Truman denies he called General Eisenhower "anti-Catholic" or "anti-Jewish," but he cannot deny the quotation officially issued by the White House and quoted above which says plainly that the Republican nominee "is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called "master race'." That's pretty vicious language and Mr. Truman, who has at times apologized to those whom he wronged—the Marines, for example—owes General Eisenhower an apology and also an apology not only to the Republican party but to the 25 Democratic senators who voted for the McCarran law. They certainly do not by their votes mean to "accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race'," which, of course, is German nazism.

Incidentally, when the McCarran bill went to the White House, it was endorsed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Department of Justice, the Visa and Passport Division of the Department of State and by the Central Intelligence Agency. Two-thirds of both houses of Congress voted to override Mr. Truman's veto of the bill.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing show—

Don't number Rhode Island among those states which have disgracefully neglected to provide proper absentee balloting machinery to enable men serving overseas or in distantly removed camps in the U. S. to vote in the November elections.

The little state's brilliant (and blind) Attorney General William E. Powers was telling us the other day at a meeting of the National Council to Combat Blindness that Rhode Island absentee ballots are complete enough to enable a busy infantryman in Korea to vote for federal, state and municipal office seekers. Ballots need not be returned before December 4, in time for consideration in electoral college proceedings.

The absent serviceman need not personally apply for a ballot. One will be sent to him at the request of any member of the family, or a friend. The Rhode Island bill was passed during the war on the order of then Gov. J. Howard McGrath and the plugging of Powers, at that time deputy floor leader of the state's House of Representatives.

The Department of Defense estimates that about 1,000,000 service men will be deprived of the vote on November 4—a shocking calamity when one considers that they have so much more right to the vote than the millions who stay at home and so often irresponsibly ignore the privilege.

Gov. Tom Dewey, never more relaxed than he is now on TV, the radio and the rostrum, said the other night on "Meet the Press" that he is not working to bring Generals Eisenhower and MacArthur together. Doesn't know of any such plan, either, Dewey said.

The plan is in existence, of course. Herbert Hoover apparently has done what he can. So has Tom Coleman, Wisconsin GOPoliatico. Ike has made two public overtures.

Nobody will get the role of mediator if Gen. MacArthur speaks as expected about a week before the election. The general's purpose, it can be presumed, will be to inform his die-hard supporters that he is not a candidate and that they will be wasting their votes if they declare for him in the places where his name will appear on the ballot representing splinter organizations he never heard of. It is believed he'll suggest that the Republican candidates be backed. Whether he'll plug Eisenhower personally is unknown, but the party endorsement will be strong.

The enormous cost of conducting a presidential campaign is never more in focus than during the last trying weeks of all-out effort. Talked to a man of some distinction in politics yesterday and he said that the chairman of the finance committee of one of the parties was forced last week to raise an additional $1,300,000 to geep the party's tiger alive.

One comprehends a little more fully, too, the futility of trying to control campaign spending by any law as shot full of holes as the Hatch Act. It ostensibly limits contributions from individuals and cor-

Vote Republican Elect These Candidates

For President
DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER
For Vice President
RICHARD M. NIXON
For United States Senate
J. GLENN BEALL
For Member Of Congress
DEWITT S. HYDE

California Could Decide It

If the 1952 Presidential election should be close, it could be decided by the result in California. The Golden State has 32 electoral votes this year, surpassed only by New York (45) and equaled only by Pennsylvania.

The last previous close Presidential election, that of 1916, was decided by California, in that Charles E. Hughes, Republican, would have been elected if California hadn't gone for President Wilson. It is true that Wilson would have lost if he hadn't carried each of certain other states, but the California majority for Wilson was less than 4,000 out of 999,000 votes cast. Also, the final returns in the state were delayed, giving rise to the wisecrack that Hughes was President for three days.

In 1948 California went for Truman by only 17,865 out of 4,021,538 votes cast, with Henry A. Wallace on the Progressive ticket getting 190,381. Los Angeles County and San Francisco each went for Truman over Dewey by about 8,000, San Diego County for Dewey by a slight edge. In the 42 counties in the northern half of the state, Truman had a majority over Dewey of 20,000; in the 16 in the southern half, Dewey had a 2,000 majority over Truman.

The Republicans claim the edge in California because Senator Nixon, GOP vice presidential nominee, is popular there, especially since his television and radio defense of his special fund; because popular Governor Warren is campaigning for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket; because Eisenhower is for, Stevenson against, state ownership of marginal-sea oil; because Eisenhower drew especially large crowds in the state.

The Democrats argue that Nixon is less popular in 1952 than was Warren, the GOP vice presidential nominee in 1948; that the impact of the Nixon broadcast will have worn off by election day; that most of the rank-and-file voters are uninterested in the oil issue; that almost all the Wallace voters of 1948 will be Stevenson voters of 1952.

The New Voters

About 7½ million civilians, according to Census Bureau estimates, will be for the first time old enough (21 in 47 states, 18 in Georgia) this year to vote in a Presidential election. And the Truman popular majority over Dewey in 1948 was only 2.1 million.

As against this 7.5 million gross increase in the civilian population of voting age must be put a decrease, due largely to death, of about 4 million over the four years. This doesn't, of course, mean that the net national increase of about 3.5 million will be reflected among the states proportionately to their respective populations. This is a nation of considerable shifting of population, even within one year.

The Census Bureau believes that three states—Maine, Massachusetts, Washington—have actually a smaller civilian population of voting age in 1952 than in 1948. Also, that eight other states have done little more than hold their own—Vermont, Rhode Island, West Virginia, Ohio, North Dakota, Kentucky, Tennessee, Oregon. The highest increases proportionate to total population are ascribed, in order, to Arizona, New Mexico, Florida, Colorado, Nevada, Utah, North Carolina, Nebraska, New Jersey.

Each of the major political parties naturally claims for itself most of the 1952 voters of voting age for the first time.

The Democrats argue that they are the "liberal" party, and that young persons are less conservative than their elders. The Republicans argue that the Korean War is especially unpopular among young men subject to the draft and among their families, and that the new voters, unlike many of the older ones who died after 1948, have few or no memories of the depression under President Hoover.

No Third Party

No minor party will poll enough votes this year to muddy the election waters. The 1948 election produced two third parties, each of which polled over a million votes.

The States' Rights Democrats, running Governor Thurmond of South Carolina for President, received 1,169,021 votes. Of these, 646,000 (in round numbers) came from the four Southern states carried by Thurmond, 509,000 from seven other Southern States. Thurmond got 39 of the 531 electoral votes.

The Progressive party, running Henry A. Wallace for President, polled a total of 1,156,103 votes, of which almost one-half, 509,559, came from New York, and more than 15 per cent, 190,381, from California. Wallace got votes in 45 of the 48 states, but failed to run first or second in any of them. Samuel Lubell, author of the "Future of American Politics," reports that "perhaps four of every five" Wallace voters of 1948 will vote for Stevenson this year.

The 39 Thurmond electoral votes would have sufficed to throw the 1948 election into the House of Representatives if a few more popular votes for Dewey in any two of three states—California, Illinois, Ohio—had put those two states in the Republican column. If all three had gone for Dewey instead of for Truman, Dewey would have been elected by a majority of two electoral votes.

Enough votes were cast for Wallace to keep Truman from carrying New York, and possibly that goes also for Maryland and Michigan. This year none of the minor parties is expected to change the result in a single state, although in several states a number of votes may turn up for General MacArthur.

Gambling Stamps

More and more it looks as if the federal gambling taxes are a failure. The yield from them has fallen far short of what they were figured to produce when enacted by Congress.

Last May a federal judge in Philadelphia ruled part of the act unconstitutional on the ground it had too much the smell of a police measure in the guise of a tax.

The Supreme Court has now consented to review the decision of this federal judge. Government officials are reported to be lukewarm toward the entire piece of legislation.

Enzymes And Viruses

A promising remedy against shingles (herpes zoster), chickenpox, and neuritis is now in the offing. It is protamide, an enzyme obtained from the glandular layer of hog stomach. No one knows why it works yet early reports are most encouraging.

The diseases in which protamide is being used are more annoying than serious. Therefore, the drug is not looked upon as life-saving but should it continue to maintain its present reputation many sufferers will not need to go through weeks or months of distress. Shingles, for example, is rarely if ever fatal but the disorder is painful and often disabling. The same can be said of neuritis which in addition may produce muscular weakness and paralysis. The lesions of chickenpox are far from pretty when in full bloom. They seldom last more than four or five days and usually disappear without leaving a scar; but the lesions tend to itch and scratching creates a problem.

The first clew to the efficacy of protamide came when the remedy proved helpful in herpes zoster. Because there is a close relationship between the virus of that disease and the virus of chickenpox, it seemed reasonable to assume that both culprits would respond to the enzyme. This idea occurred to the Doctors Lehrer of Sandusky, O., and they administered the product to 14 youngsters with chickenpox whose ages varied from 5 months to 12 years. The response was gratifying, particularly when the substance was injected during the first few days of the illness. There was prompt relief of itching. The physicians were of the opinion that the lesions disappeared sooner and the course of the disease was shortened, whereas the mothers felt that the youngsters were more comfortable after the treatment. They were able to be up and about at an earlier date and went back to school sooner than usual.

Dr. Richard T. Smith of Philadelphia decided to try the compound on a group of patients with neuritis who had responded poorly or not at all to vitamins, physical therapy, and other remedies. To his amazement, gradual improvement was noted in some sufferers within three to six weeks. He studied the records and found that those who were helped told of having encountered a moderate to severe upper respiratory or virus infection from one to three weeks preceding the onset of neuritis. In contrast, evidence showed that in those who were not benefitted the involved nerve was being pressed upon by the jagged edges of an arthritic spine or by a slipped disk. At any rate, he continued his studies and over a period of 26 months treated 104 patients with the inflammatory type of neuritis. All had previous virus infections and in none was there any indication of pressure on the nerve roots.

The basic treatment was a five day course of daily protamide injections into the muscle. If there was relief at the end of this time, the remedy was stopped; otherwise it was continued for another five days. Pain disappeared completely in 84 patients (80.7 per cent); of these, all symptoms vanished in 68 whereas 16 had residual numbness and tingling that disappeared in time. Again, the preparation was more valuable when injected during the first few days of the illness. These results speak for themselves considering that the normal course of neuritis is three to six weeks.

[illegible] writes: Is multiple myeloma a form of cancer?

REPLY

This bone disorder is a near relative of cancer but is not as vicious. The myelomas represent tumor-like lesions that develop in bone, especially in the spine, sternum, ribs, and skull.

SEASONAL DISCOMFORT

L. R. writes: Would you know any reason why I should develop sinus disease every spring? My nose clogs up and I feel so sick I lose 15 to 20 pounds.

REPLY

When the nose goes beserk in the spring, conditions to suspect are allergy to pollens or to dust. In other instances, swimming is responsible; water irritates the membranes or reactivates old sinus infection.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Republican Leaders Pressured Senator Morse To Stay With Eisenhower; Oregon Senator Realized Party Bolt Meant Political Suicide

WASHINGTON — Republican leaders put all sorts of pressure on GOP Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon to keep him from bolting to Stevenson. Shortly before Morse issued his statement deserting the Republican ticket, Senator Fred Seaton of Nebraska, who has been close to Morse in the Senate, telephoned him from New York, inviting him to travel on the Eisenhower train. Morse declined.

For more than a month prior to this, however, a succession of Republican leaders, including ex-Governor Stassen of Minnesota, had come to see the senator from Oregon. One of them dropped in on Morse just after Eisenhower had endorsed Senator Jenner in Indiana.

"The general didn't want to make that endorsement," he explained. "After he saw Jenner he came back to his hotel and said, 'That---. I'd much rather have punched him in the nose.'"

This made Morse even less enthusiastic.

"That shows him up more than ever as a hypocrite," he exploded. "At the same time he said that, he also stood up and told the American people to vote for Jenner.

"He did the same thing at the surrender of Morningside Heights to Senator Taft."

"That was no surrender," replied the Eisenhower emissary. "That was arranged to save Taft's face."

"What!" exclaimed the senator from Oregon. "Why Eisenhower wasn't even given the courtesy of being at the press conference where Taft announced the terms of the surrender."

United GOP Front

The emissary argued that the general was merely trying to bring unity in the party. He said he had to appease some of the old guard and bring about a united front. "But," he continued, "you will be the man he'll call to the White House for consultation after he's elected."

"On the contrary," replied Morse, "if you read that Taft statement issued after the 'surrender,' you'll see that Eisenhower agreed not to discriminate against Taft people, and you know what that means. That means the Taft people will be running the party.

"I happen to have been the first Republican to come out for Eisenhower," Morse continued. "But this is not the Eisenhower I know. I can't be for this Eisenhower. Reach over and punch the cash register: 'No sale.'"

First efforts to keep Senator Morse in line occurred prior to Labor Day, when Eisenhower leaders wanted the Oregonian's help to swing the American Federation of Labor over to Eisenhower, or at least keep them from endorsing Stevenson. To this end, Governor Stassen, who wrote the general's speech delivered at the AFL convention, came down to Washington and spent 2½ hours with Morse. However, he made no headway.

"This man compromises with his principles," argued the senator. "He has deserted the liberal wing of the Republican party in order to get elected. And that's what you did too, Harold."

Stassen passed over this reference to the fact that he was once leader of GOP liberals. He urged that Morse come to New York and sit on the platform with Eisenhower when he addressed the AFL. But Morse said no.

"That would just show that I was giving my blessing to something I didn't agree with," he replied. "It's too late for me to advise you on the general's speech anyway. I've just been invited by Bill Green to answer it."

Morse And Labor

At this, Stassen nearly jumped out of his chair. After he returned to New York, however, another Eisenhower emissary came to Washington to urge Morse not to differ with Eisenhower in the AFL speech he was to make the following day.

"This is the hardest job I ever had to do," said the emissary.

"I'll make it easy for you," replied Morse. "Go back and tell headquarters that I've agreed not to change a single line of my speech. I had planned to rewrite it and make it 10 times tougher, but in view of your visit I won't change it."

The speech as written and later delivered, of course, was much tougher than Eisenhower leaders wanted.

Senator Morse's final decision to bolt the Republican party was made after Eisenhower toured New Jersey.

"When I read those speeches in New Jersey," Morse explained to friends, "and saw the general's claim that he hadn't deserted his principles, I couldn't stand it any longer. I told my wife I was going to sleep on it, then get up next morning and take myself completely out of the political picture. Next morning I felt the same way I did the night before.

"It's political suicide, I know," concluded Morse, "but I've got to live with myself no matter who's elected."

Protects Chicago Boss

A top congressional investigator has been fired for trying to cover up for Chicago's Democratic boss Jake Arvey.

Investigator Ralph Culver was kicked off the Chelf Committee two hours after it was discovered he had left Arvey's name out of a report.

Culver had been assigned to investigate the Justice Department's handling of the Pabst Brewing Company case. The beer company was in trouble for shipping spoiled grain across the Wisconsin state line, and Jake Arvey had tried to straighten it out with the Justice Department.

But Culver neglected to mention Arvey's name in his report.

After the ommission was brought to the committee's attention, Culver was fired outright. But the committee agreed not to tell the press, so as not to embarrass the congressman who had recommended Culver—Congressman Delaney of New York.

GOP Serves Cider

GOP National Chairman Arthur Summerfield blinked his eyes, then girnned broadly when an employe of the Hotel Washington needled him at a Republican rally:

"Better be careful. You're in enemy territory. This hotel is a stronghold of good Democrats. The help around here is solidly for Stevenson."

"I'll bet one or two drinks would change your minds," countered Summerfield.

The hotel employe, who was about to go off duty, was almost ready to test out Summerfield's theory until he learned that cider was the only beverage being served at the rally.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

It's Time For A Change .

One of the by-products of the present campaign is the variety of suggestions for changing our system of nomination and election. The proposals represent a normal reaction to a system which has become outmoded by the increase of population in the large cities and by radio and television.

The critics of the present methods of nomination and election usually disregard two factors which are of very great importance:

1. That the nomination of a candidate is strictly a party matter in which the general public can have no voice, if the two-party system is to continue;

2. That elections are, by the Constitution, within the province of each State, to be conducted by each state by whatever method the state chooses.

Any proposal for a change therefore has to take in these restrictions. The two-party system is a valuable institution because by this means dictatorship and tyranny are prevented and the dangers from demagoguery are supposed to be limited. Were there no two-party system, President Truman could have remained in office until he was removed by revolution, as is the practice in countries where a dictatorship is usual; or, he could appoint his successor, as Stalin is doing in Soviet Russia.

The heart of the two-party system is the selection of a candidate by a party convention, the delegates to which are chosen by partisans in each state, according to local rules. The employment of a national primary, which has been suggested, would place a limitation upon the rights of the states. It would be tantamount to holding two elections. As a matter of fact, the primary is already too costly to candidates.

Television has, in many respects, made the party convention appear to be ridiculous. The desire of some delegates to ask for a roll-call so that they can be made visible to the home folks has proved so wasteful of time and has focused attention on the poor quality of the delegations. Unless the secret ballot on voting machines is instituted in the convention, the people will lose confidence in the method altogether.

Another suggestion that has recently been advocated is permanent registration and the two-day election. Permanent registration actually exists in many places. I have now registered and voted in the same election district for 14 years. Each time, I have answered the same questions to the same clerks. This year I waited one hour in line to answer those same questions.

As to two-day voting, that would be useful in the big cities. In some states, the idea is bound to be rejected as unsuited to the circumstances of the place and the people. For instance, in the township of Sandisfield in Massachusetts, where I also live, there are only 300 families. The voting can be done in a few hours. Much of America is like that.

In the big cities, voting is becoming a real hardship because of the delay. A two-day election could be useful, if so devised that the ballots could be cast swiftly and that voters did not postpone their participation to the last moment of the second day.

On the other hand, there would have to be a universal agreement among the election officials of the 48 states, among newspapers and the radio, that no results would be published until the polls had finally been closed in every part of the country. It would be wrong to permit the first day's vote to influence the second day's vote.

Unfortunately there are many who still believe that they like to vote for the winner, which is to stultify the election to a horse race. Such people would be influenced by premature results.

Even without two-day voting, it would be preferable if results were announced two or three days after election day, but that idea will not prove popular. The people want to know the results. In the big cities, the two-day vote would only be practical if a moratorium were declared on election news for the two-day period. Otherwise, the news itself would become a device of electioneering.

Surely, our elections are too complex and too expensive. When this one is over, little thought will be given to this subject until 1956. Yet, something serious ought to be done to reform nominations and elections before then.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Far beyond election day, the damage done by President Truman in his misguided attempt to arouse race and religious prejudice in America will be remembered. For to accuse one political party and its nominee of religious prejudice and to ride to victory on the crest of such aroused passions would tend to approve religious bigotry as a vehicle for vote-getting in future political campaigns.

To understand the enormity of Mr. Truman's offense—and the failure of Governor Stevenson to repudiate the President's comments or to apologize for them to the American people—it is necessary to read exactly what the original utterance actually included. The occasion was a "mobilization conference" of the National Jewish Welfare Board—presumably a nonpartisan objective. Mr. Truman chose to make a political speech and, though he could not be present in person, the address, prepared in advance, was read by the assistant secretary of state for public affairs, Howland Sargeant.

In the first part of the speech, Mr. Truman explained the purpose of the meeting. He said:

Endorsed By Stevenson

"This meeting has been called to help the Jewish Welfare Board expand and intensify its welfare services to Jewish personnel in the uniform of the United States and to strengthen its efforts on behalf of the civilian Jewish communities."

Should such a meeting be utilized for a political speech? Mr. Truman had no hesitancy in doing so. He promptly launched into a partisan address, denouncing the so-called "national origins quota" system in determining immigration classifications. This system has been in the law since 1924, but never before has any President of the United States openly accused either a political party or nominee of being anti-Semitic or anti-Catholic just because some of the provisions of the law have been regarded by some groups as discriminatory. Actually the present law was sponsored by Senator McCarran, himself a devout Catholic. The National Catholic Welfare Conference approved the provisions of the law. As for most of the Jewish groups, they did not appear at the public hearings in opposition. Also 25 Democrats and 32 Republicans voted to override President Truman's veto. Governor Stevenson has endorsed the Democratic senators who did this—those up for election this year.

Senator Fulbright, Democrat, of Arkansas, voted for enactment of the McCarran law, and he is helping to manage Governor Stevenson's campaign. Senator MacFarland of Arizona, the Democratic party's leader in the Senate, voted for the McCarran bill and to override the Truman veto. Are they both exempt from the Truman denunciation?

Knowing all this not to be a party issue, Mr. Truman nevertheless declared that General Eisenhower had endorsed for re-election some Republican senators who had voted for the McCarran law. In truth, the Republican nominee endorsed all candidates as a matter of party harmony but came out himself for a complete revision of the McCarran law. Here follows the controversial statement by Mr. Truman:

"The Republican candidate for the Presidency cannot escape responsibility for his endorsements. He has had an attack of moral blindness, for today, he is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race' although he took a leading part in liberating Europe from their domination."

Boner For History

Thus, in effect, Mr. Truman called General Eisenhower pro-Nazi and in another part of his speech he added: "Anti-Semitism, anti-Catholicism, and anti-foreignism grow only in concealment. They have hidden themselves within the Republican party for years."

This paragraph will go down in history as a "boner" not unlike that which deefated James G. Blaine in 1894 when one of his visitors in a delegation said the Democratic party was the party of "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion." Mr. Blaine didn't catch the meaning of it at the time. The remark was, however, widely publicized and is believed to have persuaded Catholics to vote as a group in that election against the Republican nominee, who lost.

It could work in reverse. For the Jews of America do not wish to be catalogued as all voting for one party and neither do the Catholics. Groups which are in the minority have learned over the years to vote as Americans rather than as class-conscious religionists. There are in America many hidden anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic influences and, like the mischief-makers among Communists, they often play one group against the other and start such attacks in behalf of the very candidate they want to see beaten. Thus in the preconvention campaign there were attacks by anti-Semitic groups, many of them anonymous, which accused General Eisenhower of being pro-Jewish. His name was declared by them to be Jewish, although there wasn't the slightest foundation in fact for such a statement.

What President Truman has done is to feed the anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic forces in America more ammunition than they have been fed for decades. After the election is over, in the event that Governor Stevenson wins, the tirades will take on another complexion—Democrats will be assailed as anti-Protestant and pro-Jewish. This is the kind of thing Mr. Truman, as President of the United States and as an experienced hand in politics, should have known. But he chose not to discuss the McCarran law in an objective sense—there have been many good arguments made against its provisions—but to campaign on it in a voice of passion and religious prejudice openly seeking to gain votes for the Democratic ticket.

Used Vicious Language

Down the line, where the whispering thrives in a national political campaign the poison uttered by Mr. Truman will spread and the net result after election will be to start a wave of religious and racial bigotry—especially if the Republicans lose the election. Mr. Truman denies he called General Eisenhower "anti-Catholic" or "anti-Jewish," but he cannot deny the quotation officially issued by the White House and quoted above which says plainly that the Republican nominee "is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called "master race'." That's pretty vicious language and Mr. Truman, who has at times apologized to those whom he wronged—the Marines, for example—owes General Eisenhower an apology and also an apology not only to the Republican party but to the 25 Democratic senators who voted for the McCarran law. They certainly do not by their votes mean to "accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race'," which, of course, is German nazism.

Incidentally, when the McCarran bill went to the White House, it was endorsed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Department of Justice, the Visa and Passport Division of the Department of State and by the Central Intelligence Agency. Two-thirds of both houses of Congress voted to override Mr. Truman's veto of the bill.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing show—

Don't number Rhode Island among those states which have disgracefully neglected to provide proper absentee balloting machinery to enable men serving overseas or in distantly removed camps in the U. S. to vote in the November elections.

The little state's brilliant (and blind) Attorney General William E. Powers was telling us the other day at a meeting of the National Council to Combat Blindness that Rhode Island absentee ballots are complete enough to enable a busy infantryman in Korea to vote for federal, state and municipal office seekers. Ballots need not be returned before December 4, in time for consideration in electoral college proceedings.

The absent serviceman need not personally apply for a ballot. One will be sent to him at the request of any member of the family, or a friend. The Rhode Island bill was passed during the war on the order of then Gov. J. Howard McGrath and the plugging of Powers, at that time deputy floor leader of the state's House of Representatives.

The Department of Defense estimates that about 1,000,000 service men will be deprived of the vote on November 4—a shocking calamity when one considers that they have so much more right to the vote than the millions who stay at home and so often irresponsibly ignore the privilege.

Gov. Tom Dewey, never more relaxed than he is now on TV, the radio and the rostrum, said the other night on "Meet the Press" that he is not working to bring Generals Eisenhower and MacArthur together. Doesn't know of any such plan, either, Dewey said.

The plan is in existence, of course. Herbert Hoover apparently has done what he can. So has Tom Coleman, Wisconsin GOPoliatico. Ike has made two public overtures.

Nobody will get the role of mediator if Gen. MacArthur speaks as expected about a week before the election. The general's purpose, it can be presumed, will be to inform his die-hard supporters that he is not a candidate and that they will be wasting their votes if they declare for him in the places where his name will appear on the ballot representing splinter organizations he never heard of. It is believed he'll suggest that the Republican candidates be backed. Whether he'll plug Eisenhower personally is unknown, but the party endorsement will be strong.

The enormous cost of conducting a presidential campaign is never more in focus than during the last trying weeks of all-out effort. Talked to a man of some distinction in politics yesterday and he said that the chairman of the finance committee of one of the parties was forced last week to raise an additional $1,300,000 to geep the party's tiger alive.

One comprehends a little more fully, too, the futility of trying to control campaign spending by any law as shot full of holes as the Hatch Act. It ostensibly limits contributions from individuals and cor-

Movie "Look Alikes" Have Tough Time But Not Gary Cooper And Randy Scott

By ARMAND ARCHERD

HOLLYWOOD — Some of the world's most beautiful women and handsomest men are roaming the streets of Movieville jobless. And they probably never will get jobs in the film industry. Reason: they look too much like top stars.

Thought they'd be sure to get to the top? It doesn't work out that way. Rival studios avoid competitors' "look-alikes" because the obvious comment would be "copy-cat." The unfortunate youngsters can't even get jobs as extras or bit players because their appearance would distract the viewer!

Their only hope is to either become stuntmen or doubles for their famous counterparts — then hope the star has sufficient hair-raising films to give them enough work.

The most famous cases in Hollywood history where "look-alikes" failed in their bids for stardom because of their physical similarity to stars are: Robert Alda, who looked too much like Cary Grant; Amanda Blake, who was tagged "a young Greer Garson"; Mary Castle, a virtual carbon copy of Rita Hayworth; Bob Crosby, who has made a name for himself on records and in radio, never made it on film because he looks and sounds so much like brother Bing.

However, for every rule, even in Hollywood, there must be an exception. The exception in this case is so apparent, I'm surprised I never noticed it before.

It happened while I was visiting the Come On, Texas set. All of a sudden I stopped and wondered what Gary Cooper was doing there when I knew he was supposed to be in West Samoa making another film. The answer was simple. It wasn't Coop, but his "look-alike," Randolph Scott.

I hesitated to tell Scott of my thought because no star likes to be told he looks like anyone else. However, I knew him. Knew he is good-natured — and so wealthy — he wouldn't care anyhow.

He laughed and told me this was far from the first time he was mistaken for Cooper.

The error is an understandable one. Both are 6 feet 3 inches tall and weigh around 185 pounds. Both have light brown hair. In addition they both are solemn-faced most of the time, talk little and walk slowly except in movie fights when they both favor a fast uppercut against their opponents' chins. Both have string bean builds, too. And both have fancy bank accounts.

Gary has been in the business 27 years, Randy 21. They were discovered in westerns and have parlayed the saddle and sagebrush sagas into long, successful careers.

"The first time anybody confused us," recalled Scott, "was soon after I had signed with a studio. An executive introduced me to another studio official as 'Gary Cooper' and Gary he called 'Randolph Scott.'

"Ever since I've often had to explain that I'm not Gary Cooper though sometimes I just let it pass.

"Autograph hunters say to me: 'Will you sign my book, Mr. Cooper?' So I sign Gary's name and that way nobody is embarrassed. I know the same thing happens to Gary, and he writes my name.

"Even a wardrobe man right here at the studio got us confused recently when Gary was working in Springfield Rifle and I was on the lot at the same time doing The Man Behind the Gun. He gave me Gary's uniform and Gary got mine. There was some excuse, however, because we were both playing Union army officers!"

The two, who are good pals, decided to pull a gag one day.

Scott drove through the studio gate that morning in Coop's familiar blue foreign roadster. The gateman said, "Good morning, Mr. Scott." Then he gave him and the car a surprised look and shouted:

"Oh, I'm sorry Mr. Cooper. For a second, I thought you were Mr. Scott."

All of which proves you can fool some of the people all of the time and all of the people some of the time but don't fool around with movie stars.

Judge Warns Against Holiday Vandalism

Allegany County Juvenile Court Magistrate Alban C. Thompson yesterday issued a warning to young pre-Halloween pranksters who destroy or damage property during the holiday season.

Magistrate Thompson urged parents to instruct their children in the penalties of law concerning destruction of property and warned that all juveniles brought to court in such cases will be punished.

The juvenile judge added that the idea of Halloween was to provide fun and enjoyment for children, but harmful tricks and other damaging antics would only bring trouble to the family.

In cases where property is damaged or destroyed, offenders are required to pay for destruction in addition to other punishment.

Baghdad, capital and largest city of Iraq, is built on the right and left banks of the Tigris river. It has a population of half a million inhabitants.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Two qualities that never help any member of the fair sex attain the goal she seeks are bossiness and belligerence, and both of these unhappy attitudes are intensified when her voice registers shrillness. Perhaps that is why a shrill voice usually falls on "deaf" ears—whether those of the child she cherishes or the man who cherishes her.

Strident Or Pleasant?

Of course all of us can forgive an occasional lapse into shrillness. When you are tired, nervous, excited or angry your voice is naturally going to reflect your tension. At such moments, the muscles of the throat tighten and contract; then, like a strained violin string, you are helpless to produce any but shrill, squeaky or thin sounds.

But no one should be expected to put up with a shrill and shrewish-pitched voice most of the time. If that is your usual voice key, it's probably merely a bad habit that you can change.

Encourage your tensed throat and speech organs to relax by spending five minutes a day (for from two to six months) on these exercises:

1. Let your jaw drop, close and drop again, always working for a tighter close and a more relaxed drop. Repeat many times.

2. With your jaw in its most relaxed position, utter all of the variants of the vowel sounds such as awe, ah, hoot, hep, hit and us. Repeat over and over, each time, lowering your pitch until you sound like a real "low-down" singer. (Have no fear that your voice may get stuck in the lowest register! But be assured this will help to get it out of the highest, shrillest register as a habit.)

The "Come-hither" Voice

3. Say "ah" again and again, consciously pulling down on the muscles at the base of your tongue. This relaxes your throat and enlarges the opening to your pharynx —just what you need.

4. Listen at all times for improvement; hold onto any you hear! "Pharynx resonance" is what the expert calls the voice quality you are wooing. Once you've got it, you'll be more likely to consider it "voice come-hitherness"! Certainly that's the effect your voice will have on your audience.

YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE

You can achieve an appealing, resonant, sonorous voice—one that can be a vibrant attribute to charm and success—by reading the new booklet, YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE, which gives complete instructions on how to overcome such wearisome speaking qualities as tonelessness, dullness and lack of proper modulation. Write to Secret of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Even the shrillest voice can be trained to relax! A "come-hither" voice is the result of the effort!

Though a man may never compliment you on your walk, don't think he isn't aware of whether it is graceful. "She navigates like a duck" or "like a pigeon" are phrases men use in describing two unfortunate feminine walking habits.

Walking with the toes pointed out makes the entire figure appear heavy, plodding and a-waddle. Walking with the toes turned in bows the legs and inverts the knees.

Corrections Assured

Unless there is a serious structural difficulty, no woman need be afflicted with these detractions that minimize even the charms of a lovely face and otherwise flawless figure.

To straighten pigeon toes, perform this exercise thirty times daily: Take off your shoes, place your feet about four inches apart and deliberately point your toes toward each other as much as possible. Now, very slowly and with great tension in the feet and ankles, pull your heels together across the floor until they touch. Hold for a count of ten, trying to make the insides of your calves touch. Relax and repeat.

If your toes point outward, here is the routine to coax them into line: Remove your shoes and stand with your heels together and toes pointed at "ten minutes to two."

Little by little, shift your weight forward to the pads as you gradually draw the inside edges of your feet together. Holding your feet in this position, toes pointing straight ahead, take six steps forward. Repeat twenty times daily.

Toe The Line

Naturally it is important to try to keep your toes pointed forward whenever you walk. Imagine that you are moving along on two straight, parallel tracks that are placed about two inches apart. Make each foot toe its track with every step.

At first the correct toe position will feel uncomfortable and take effort to maintain. But after a bit you will find yourself tracking straight ahead with no thought at all. It will give an upsurge to your grace, self-confidence and poise!

Tomorrow: For all over twenty five.

Hollywood's Most Exciting Women

Joan Crawford Is Duse, Bernhardt Rolled Into One

This is the second article in Louella O. Parsons' series on Hollywood's ten most exciting women. Watch the News and Sunday Times for the stories of the other women selected by the acknowledged queen of filmland for her list of the most exciting stars in the nation's movie capital.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(Copyright 1952

By International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Unlike Marilyn Monroe, who has been a charmer and a provocative actress for a comparatively brief period, Joan Crawford has kept her place as one of Hollywood's most exciting actresses for 25 years.

Joan, more than any Hollywood actress, knows the value of commercializing her glamour. While Marilyn doesn't hesitate to appear with hair tumbled and clothes in disorder, Joan Crawford never makes a public appearance without being groomed within an inch of her life. Every hair is in place, and every part of her costume, from her shoes to her hat, in perfect taste.

Joan would no more appear in public in slacks and run down heels, than she would start a public brawl on Hollywod Boulevard.

This Crawford girl, born Lucille Lesueur, knows the importance of being a movie queen, and she lives the part every hour of her life.

Everything that happens in her colorful life is a big, dramatic situation. She can take the simplest happening and turn it into a breathtaking experience. She's Duse and she's Bernhardt rolled into one, but most of all, she's Crawford.

Started As Dancer

I first met Joan when she was brought to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by the late Harry Rapf to play in a picture starring Zazu Pitts, called "Pretty Ladies." Joan was a dancer, and I remember her as a big-eyed plump girl who hadn't yet begun to realize the value of a good figure.

She had been in movie town only a short time when she danced nightly at the Cocoanut Grove with Michael Cudahy, scion of the meat packing family. They won so many cups they could have started a store. Then Mrs. Cudahy thought her son was getting too serious, and since Mike's allowance came from mama, he and Joan broke up. I have often wondered what Mrs. Cudahy thought when her son was unhappy for years over Joan while she zoomed to fame and fortune.

The plump Lucille Lesueur became the svelte movie star Joan Crawford, and never again did she put on so much as a pound. A few years after the Cudahy episode, she fell in love with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. After a whirlwind courtship they were married at St. Mulcahy's Church in New York.

Divorce Comes As Surprise

Joan tried to be social, but for some reason it was a long time before young Doug was invited to bring his beautiful young wife to Pickfair, where Douglas Sr. and Mary Pickford reigned then as king and queen.

I never understood why Mary and Doug, two normally kind people, held out so long. Maybe because Joan was a younger movie star, or maybe Douglas thought his only son was a younger movie star, or maybe Douglas thought his only son was too young to marry.

I was at the dinner at Pickfair when Joan made her first appearance, a little frightened, but doing her best to keep her chin up. Young Doug never left her side.

Later, Joan and Doug Sr. became very good friends, and he always called her "Billie".

The young Fairbankses were so happy that when they separated, it came as a surprise.

A news service dispatch from Stockholm carried a story that a young Swedish business man had named Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. in his divorce case.

Joan Spills Her Story

I was so sure there was nothing to it and that Joan would stand by young Doug that I wrote a story. I have never quoted a star without permission, and after I had written the story, I telephoned Joan to read it to her. My husband and I had planned to go to Arrowhead Springs for the weekend, and I was eager to get away. To my surprise, she said, "Don't print that, Louella. Tomorrow, I'll have a better story for you."

"Tomorrow," I said, "now when has Parsons ever waited 24 hours for a scoop?"

I forgot the weekend, telephoned my husband, and took him with me to Joan's house. I realized he'd be upset because he thought I needed the rest.

Joan spilled her story. There was nothing to the Swedish episode, but there was something far more important.

"I'm divorcing Douglas," she said. "I didn't want to tell you because I promised the story to a close friend of mine on a movie magazine."

Joan Wed To Franchot Tone

From past experience with motion picture stars, I realized after Joan's first confidence, she would call her studio and tell them the news, so I rushed to the telephone, and had the story on the street before any of the other papers had an inkling of what was happening.

After Joan broke up with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., the girl from San Antonio then married Franchot Tone, became very social, and went on a culture binge. She even studied opera. Joan has told me that she learned the cultivated side of life from Franchot.

Today, few women in our town can match her parties in good taste. She lives beautifully, and the former Lucille Lesueur has become one of the most sophisticated, attractive women in our town, and one of the best hostesses.

When Franchot recently landed in the hospital after his notorious fight with Tom Neal, Joan was one of the first to offer him sympathy and friendship.

After her marriage to the elegant Franchot broke up, she married Phil Terry and adopted two children (later on, she adopted two more). This marriage lasted three years. Again, I had a scoop. I was sound asleep, it's true, when she called me—a dramatic sob in her voice. I'll say for Joan she's the most completely loyal person I know.

One columnist refused to speak to her for two years because I had the exclusive, and that columnist never failed to write unpleasantly whenever Joan's name was mentioned. But you can't keep mad at Joan forever. There's too much color, too much excitement in everything she does. So she's back in good standing with that rival columnist. But heaven help her ff she marries again and gives me the story first!

Aside from being the epitome of Hollywood glamour, Joan's earthy qualities make her a very human person.

She keeps up a steady stream of correspondence with her fans, and answers ever letter she receives, and has for 25 years. That is one reason she's kept her place at the top.

She has never failed to do anything that is demanded of her to retain her public. She has handled her career very intelligently—more intelligently than she has her romantic life.

There's never been a day in Crawford's life that she isn't involved in some romantic entanglement. She adores being loved and in love. And she always thinks it's her first real heart throb.

She always prefaces these romantic flights by saying:

"I'm in love at last." And she honestly believes it.

When she's between romances, she'll appear at the various cafes with some three to five male escorts, looking like a dream, and carrying on a conversation with each of her varied and assorted gentlemen friends.

In her home life, it's a different matter. She's a good mother, and there aren't any better behaved.

Hollywood's Most Exciting Women

Joan Crawford Is Duse, Bernhardt Rolled Into One

This is the second article in Louella O. Parsons' series on Hollywood's ten most exciting women. Watch the News and Sunday Times for the stories of the other women selected by the acknowledged queen of filmland for her list of the most exciting stars in the nation's movie capital.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(Copyright 1952

By International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Unlike Marilyn Monroe, who has been a charmer and a provocative actress for a comparatively brief period, Joan Crawford has kept her place as one of Hollywood's most exciting actresses for 25 years.

Joan, more than any Hollywood actress, knows the value of commercializing her glamour. While Marilyn doesn't hesitate to appear with hair tumbled and clothes in disorder, Joan Crawford never makes a public appearance without being groomed within an inch of her life. Every hair is in place, and every part of her costume, from her shoes to her hat, in perfect taste.

Joan would no more appear in public in slacks and run down heels, than she would start a public brawl on Hollywod Boulevard.

This Crawford girl, born Lucille Lesueur, knows the importance of being a movie queen, and she lives the part every hour of her life.

Everything that happens in her colorful life is a big, dramatic situation. She can take the simplest happening and turn it into a breathtaking experience. She's Duse and she's Bernhardt rolled into one, but most of all, she's Crawford.

Started As Dancer

I first met Joan when she was brought to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by the late Harry Rapf to play in a picture starring Zazu Pitts, called "Pretty Ladies." Joan was a dancer, and I remember her as a big-eyed plump girl who hadn't yet begun to realize the value of a good figure.

She had been in movie town only a short time when she danced nightly at the Cocoanut Grove with Michael Cudahy, scion of the meat packing family. They won so many cups they could have started a store. Then Mrs. Cudahy thought her son was getting too serious, and since Mike's allowance came from mama, he and Joan broke up. I have often wondered what Mrs. Cudahy thought when her son was unhappy for years over Joan while she zoomed to fame and fortune.

The plump Lucille Lesueur became the svelte movie star Joan Crawford, and never again did she put on so much as a pound. A few years after the Cudahy episode, she fell in love with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. After a whirlwind courtship they were married at St. Mulcahy's Church in New York.

Divorce Comes As Surprise

Joan tried to be social, but for some reason it was a long time before young Doug was invited to bring his beautiful young wife to Pickfair, where Douglas Sr. and Mary Pickford reigned then as king and queen.

I never understood why Mary and Doug, two normally kind people, held out so long. Maybe because Joan was a younger movie star, or maybe Douglas thought his only son was a younger movie star, or maybe Douglas thought his only son was too young to marry.

I was at the dinner at Pickfair when Joan made her first appearance, a little frightened, but doing her best to keep her chin up. Young Doug never left her side.

Later, Joan and Doug Sr. became very good friends, and he always called her "Billie".

The young Fairbankses were so happy that when they separated, it came as a surprise.

A news service dispatch from Stockholm carried a story that a young Swedish business man had named Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. in his divorce case.

Joan Spills Her Story

I was so sure there was nothing to it and that Joan would stand by young Doug that I wrote a story. I have never quoted a star without permission, and after I had written the story, I telephoned Joan to read it to her. My husband and I had planned to go to Arrowhead Springs for the weekend, and I was eager to get away. To my surprise, she said, "Don't print that, Louella. Tomorrow, I'll have a better story for you."

"Tomorrow," I said, "now when has Parsons ever waited 24 hours for a scoop?"

I forgot the weekend, telephoned my husband, and took him with me to Joan's house. I realized he'd be upset because he thought I needed the rest.

Joan spilled her story. There was nothing to the Swedish episode, but there was something far more important.

"I'm divorcing Douglas," she said. "I didn't want to tell you because I promised the story to a close friend of mine on a movie magazine."

Joan Wed To Franchot Tone

From past experience with motion picture stars, I realized after Joan's first confidence, she would call her studio and tell them the news, so I rushed to the telephone, and had the story on the street before any of the other papers had an inkling of what was happening.

After Joan broke up with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., the girl from San Antonio then married Franchot Tone, became very social, and went on a culture binge. She even studied opera. Joan has told me that she learned the cultivated side of life from Franchot.

Today, few women in our town can match her parties in good taste. She lives beautifully, and the former Lucille Lesueur has become one of the most sophisticated, attractive women in our town, and one of the best hostesses.

When Franchot recently landed in the hospital after his notorious fight with Tom Neal, Joan was one of the first to offer him sympathy and friendship.

After her marriage to the elegant Franchot broke up, she married Phil Terry and adopted two children (later on, she adopted two more). This marriage lasted three years. Again, I had a scoop. I was sound asleep, it's true, when she called me—a dramatic sob in her voice. I'll say for Joan she's the most completely loyal person I know.

One columnist refused to speak to her for two years because I had the exclusive, and that columnist never failed to write unpleasantly whenever Joan's name was mentioned. But you can't keep mad at Joan forever. There's too much color, too much excitement in everything she does. So she's back in good standing with that rival columnist. But heaven help her ff she marries again and gives me the story first!

Aside from being the epitome of Hollywood glamour, Joan's earthy qualities make her a very human person.

She keeps up a steady stream of correspondence with her fans, and answers ever letter she receives, and has for 25 years. That is one reason she's kept her place at the top.

She has never failed to do anything that is demanded of her to retain her public. She has handled her career very intelligently—more intelligently than she has her romantic life.

There's never been a day in Crawford's life that she isn't involved in some romantic entanglement. She adores being loved and in love. And she always thinks it's her first real heart throb.

She always prefaces these romantic flights by saying:

"I'm in love at last." And she honestly believes it.

When she's between romances, she'll appear at the various cafes with some three to five male escorts, looking like a dream, and carrying on a conversation with each of her varied and assorted gentlemen friends.

In her home life, it's a different matter. She's a good mother, and there aren't any better behaved.

My New York
by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—Kay Thompson is a it into her imaginative and restless divorcee, but if she ever should take head to re-wed, there would be no doubt whatsoever as to who would wear the pants in the family. It would be Kay herself—the "wonderful, fabulous, glamorous Kay," as her co-starring Williams brothers introduce her — because Kay has done more for pants in the last 10 years than Fleming did for bread mould.

There is no blushing when you speak of Kay's pants because they are not the Gussie Moran type. When you speak of Kay's pants, you speak of what more coy women call their slacks. Kay, a blunt soul, prefers to call them pants—and to wear them endlessly, always, and, if she has her way, eternally.

Miss Thompson and the Williams brothers are, by now, the greatest single act in the sophisticated saloons of the country. Currently they are breaking all records, as the ugly phrase has it, at the Persian Room of the Plaza, and there is little doubt that it has become the chic thing to do to see them nightly and to quote from their special songs and material, Just as London cafe-goers are quoting from Noel Coward's recent night club routine, as a tip-off that they travel in the right circles. In spite of this deadly kind of popularity, the act is good.

During the performance of this act, Kay always wears pants— spectacular velvet, gabardine, silk, satin pants of all sizes and shapes, most of them clinging tightly to her lower limbs like jodhpurs. A tall and spare woman, with ash blond hair and sharp features, by no means conventionally pretty, she wears size 10. For the men in the audience, that means she looks wonderful in her pants, making her and Katharine Hepburn the only women in the world who do. You need no hips and a paucity of back-of-the-lap to get away with them. At least I thought so.

"That's not so," Miss Thompson cried defiantly at me in her suite in the Plaza today. "You take the average woman—the child-bearing, house-cleaning female who goes to market and cooks dinner for hubby at night and maybe bulges a little where she shouldn't: if that woman would put herself into a glamorous pair of pants, maybe black velvet or such, with a sequin here or there and a couple of gold or jeweled bangles on her wrist, and a nice necklace and sexy blouse—why, she'd be the greatest thing her husband ever saw, after a hard day at the office."

In the course of blazing the trail for pants—she has 32 pair, most of them made by a California dressmaker but some turned out by such Parisian couturiers as Balman, etc. —Kay has had her setbacks. The day Piet beat Coaltown out at the Arlington Park racecourse in Chicago, she was wearing a black faille pair, along with a ducky white sweater and linen coat, and was refused admittance to the turf-and-field club restaurant, so depressing her that she went back out on the clubhouse lawn and in a devil-may-care mood bet Piet. Made $300, too.

"Funniest thing about that," she told me with a smile, "was that the Williams brothers were with me and when the maitre d' at the turf-and-field restaurant said he couldn't admit a woman wearing slacks, the four of them sputtered indignantly, 'How dare you call them slacks? Those are Miss Thompson's pants'!"

Another time Kay was going into the Venice ballroom in Long Beach, Cal., to hear Benny Goodman's band, and she had on a chic pair of gabardine pants, along with a long evening coat and an armful of diamonds and pearls. 'You can't come in here with those on," the doorman said. Miss Thompson looked around, stunned, at the big and glittering and noisy dance hall, which wasn't quite El Morocco. "Here?" she asked in disbelief. The doorman nodded, with tight lips, so she went over to the roller-coaster instead.

It is interesting to note that Miss Kay is permitted into the Stork Club, generally considered a social cut or two higher than a Venice ballroom, in her pants — although perhaps if she were Mamie Glutz, she might not be. Ethel Merman was with her, first time she got past the plush rope. "Boy," said the outspoken Ethel, "you're the first dame ever got into this joint in a rig like that."

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

The Traveling Salesman

The boys put me to work last week. I took my package of samples and went on the road. It was fun finding out whether I could still sell. I did. The other day at lunch the subject came up.

John Wheeler

"I wonder what a salesman thinks of when he gets up in the morning and is shaving," said George Abbott. "I suppose he rubs his hands together and boasts to himself,

"'I'll knock 'em dead today.'

"The only time I ever tried it was when I was working my way through college, and I hated it. My line was kitchen utensils."

"Don't look down your nose," I replied. "You're a salesman now. You're trying to sell your shows to the public."

"Not at all," he answered. "I do it for the fun of producing them."

"Then why do you have all those posters and photographs of actors and actresses in the lobby and outside the theater?" I asked him. "And why do you run ads in the newspapers and hire a press agent to plug your show?"

"Don't let's pursue it any further," he muttered—I guess that's the right verb—as he finished his dessert.

The first town I hit was Washington. Drew Pearson had lunch with me at the Mayflower Hotel and told me a lot of interesting inside stuff which I will leave for him to write in his column. A lady came over to the table and spoke to me cordially, even though I was wearing an Ike button. To make me comfortable, she began.

"I guess you don't know who I am."

"I certainly do. You are India Edwards, and you are the chairman or chairwoman of the ladies' department of the Democratic National Committee. You also appeared on television at the convention. I can remind you of the first time I met you which was a lot of years ago if you want me to."

She nodded her head, so it is her own fault.

"It was in 1919 in Chicago when you worked on the Tribune. I was going to take Sidney Smith, who drew the Gumps, for dinner to try to hire him, but I ran into Ring Lardner.

"'What are you doing tonight?' he asked me. I told him.

"'There you are—always thinking of money, and besides that Smith guy is an awful bore. I have invited two beautiful young ladies to dinner, so forget him and come along, he said.

"I did, and you were one of them. Incidentally, we never signed up Smith."

"That's a long time ago," she agreed.

"What do you think of the election?" I asked her.

"Stevenson looks better every day," she answered. "He'll win. Do you want to bet?"

"Which one do you take?" I said.

"Not R. H. Macy or Senator Taft or President Truman, but Stevenson," she answered.

"To show there is no hard feeling, I'll make it $10 and back Ike."

I got out my note book and wrote it down. She looked at my Eisenhower badge.

"I hear the Republicans are long on those—overstocked—and having trouble giving them away," she remarked as she shook hands and departed.

"A smart woman," commented Mr. Pearson.

I think he meant her general conduct and not the wager. Well, I'll have to tell you more about my experiences as a salesman in my next.

Won't Be Long Now

Both candidates are up against the same problem. They have to be all things to all men and get the women's vote too.

We have been waiting for Barkley to bust loose on a rostrum romp. The Veep was a great fellow for patting little children on the hat.

There hasn't been so much baby-kissing this campaign. That's because a candidate picked up a little darling in Scattered Sand, Idaho. The fond mother said, "how would you like to hold that brat until it's old enough to vote?"

The candidates are sticking to straight facts with the information removed. Ike and Adlai could swap speeches without inflicting the least bit of difference on the ultimate recount.

This campaign is not a ripple-rouser compared with Tedd, Roosevelt and Bryan. They accused each other of things they were hoping to do themselves.

The United States has nearly 1,000 organizations devoted exclusively to the production of footwear.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

The Traveling Salesman

The boys put me to work last week. I took my package of samples and went on the road. It was fun finding out whether I could still sell. I did. The other day at lunch the subject came up.

John Wheeler

"I wonder what a salesman thinks of when he gets up in the morning and is shaving," said George Abbott. "I suppose he rubs his hands together and boasts to himself,

"'I'll knock 'em dead today.'

"The only time I ever tried it was when I was working my way through college, and I hated it. My line was kitchen utensils."

"Don't look down your nose," I replied. "You're a salesman now. You're trying to sell your shows to the public."

"Not at all," he answered. "I do it for the fun of producing them."

"Then why do you have all those posters and photographs of actors and actresses in the lobby and outside the theater?" I asked him. "And why do you run ads in the newspapers and hire a press agent to plug your show?"

"Don't let's pursue it any further," he muttered—I guess that's the right verb—as he finished his dessert.

The first town I hit was Washington. Drew Pearson had lunch with me at the Mayflower Hotel and told me a lot of interesting inside stuff which I will leave for him to write in his column. A lady came over to the table and spoke to me cordially, even though I was wearing an Ike button. To make me comfortable, she began.

"I guess you don't know who I am."

"I certainly do. You are India Edwards, and you are the chairman or chairwoman of the ladies' department of the Democratic National Committee. You also appeared on television at the convention. I can remind you of the first time I met you which was a lot of years ago if you want me to."

She nodded her head, so it is her own fault.

"It was in 1919 in Chicago when you worked on the Tribune. I was going to take Sidney Smith, who drew the Gumps, for dinner to try to hire him, but I ran into Ring Lardner.

"'What are you doing tonight?' he asked me. I told him.

"'There you are—always thinking of money, and besides that Smith guy is an awful bore. I have invited two beautiful young ladies to dinner, so forget him and come along, he said.

"I did, and you were one of them. Incidentally, we never signed up Smith."

"That's a long time ago," she agreed.

"What do you think of the election?" I asked her.

"Stevenson looks better every day," she answered. "He'll win. Do you want to bet?"

"Which one do you take?" I said.

"Not R. H. Macy or Senator Taft or President Truman, but Stevenson," she answered.

"To show there is no hard feeling, I'll make it $10 and back Ike."

I got out my note book and wrote it down. She looked at my Eisenhower badge.

"I hear the Republicans are long on those—overstocked—and having trouble giving them away," she remarked as she shook hands and departed.

"A smart woman," commented Mr. Pearson.

I think he meant her general conduct and not the wager. Well, I'll have to tell you more about my experiences as a salesman in my next.

Won't Be Long Now

Both candidates are up against the same problem. They have to be all things to all men and get the women's vote too.

We have been waiting for Barkley to bust loose on a rostrum romp. The Veep was a great fellow for patting little children on the hat.

There hasn't been so much babykissing this campaign. That's because a candidate picked up a little darling in Scattered Sand, Idaho. The fond mother said, "how would you like to hold that brat until it's old enough to vote?"

The candidates are sticking to straight facts with the information removed. Ike and Adlai could swap speeches without inflicting the least bit of difference on the ultimate recount.

This campaign is not a ripple-rouser compared with Tedd, Roosevelt and Bryan. They accused each other of things they were hoping to do themselves.

The United States has nearly 1,000 organizations devoted exclusively to the production of footwear.

Transit Employes Vacation Boosted

The Federal Wage Stabilization Board has granted approval for three weeks vacation for employes of 15 years service with the Cumberland Transit Lines, Larry Grim, business agent for the local bus drivers said last night.

When the current contract with the bus line was negotiated in February by Local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America, Grim said the three-weeks vacation with pay was granted to employes of the company with 15 or more years service, subject to approval by the WSB.

The petition for approval was twice turned down by the regional WSB in Richmond, Grim stated, and thus automatically went to the review and appeals committee of the national WSB in Washington.

This committee, Grim continued, reviewed the contract, recommended approval of the clause for the vacation time, and referred it to the WSB which granted approval on the recommendations.

Notification of the board's approval was sent to Grim last night by Virginia F. Moore, executive secretary of the WSB.

Altogether 11 employes of the bus concern will be affected by the ruling, Grim added.

The Grand Army of the Republic was formed in Decatur, Ill., on April 6, 1866.

A building fund drive for $45,000 in cash and pledges, extending over a period of three years, will get underway today at 6:30 p. m. at LaVale Methodist Church with a congregational covered dish supper at the parsonage.

Afterward the congregation will participate in a pledging service, placing pledges in the model of the church. All members not attending the supper will be visited on Thursday and Friday evenings, and the complete result of the canvass will be reported at the Sunday morning service.

Next week a general canvass of the community will be made, enlisting the help of all interested persons. A solicitation of special gifts will follow.

The colonial brick structure, designed to match the present parsonage property, will be erected upon the large lot at the corner of Woodlawn Avenue and Route 40. The maximum seating capacity in the sanctuary will be 335 persons.

Group Approves Plan To Acquire Canal Land

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 21 (AP) — The board of the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce yesterday approved a resolution calling for Maryland to acquire again land given to the federal government along the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

Rep. J. Glenn Beall (R-Md) has proposed that the strip stretching from Washington deep into Western Maryland be converted to a Federal parkway.

"Continued Federal ownership of former canal property," the chamber's resolution said, "constitutes a present and future barrier to the development of Maryland's part of the Potomac River Valley for the rightful use and benefits of its citizens."

Liquor Board Cites Four Permit Holders To Hearing

The four holders of alcoholic beverage licenses who were fined in Allegany County Circuit Court Monday and yesterday have been cited to appear before the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners on Thursday, November 6.

The liquor board, meeting yesterday morning in the Court House, cited Edward Belfoure and Lena Belfoure, trading as the Hi-Dee Club North Mechanic Street; Norman and Thelma Anderson, of Zihlman; Gertrude V. Merrbach, Gilmore, and Eleanor Jackson, of Park Avenue, Frostburg, to show cause why their licenses should not be suspended or revoked.

In other board action, the commissioners accepted the beer and wine license of Henry J. Schoenadel, operator of Fairgo Tavern, who was fined $500 for selling beer to a minor.

Schoenadel surrendered his license and withdrew his application for a beer, wine and liquor permit.

After the session of the liquor board, Schoenadel gave a statement to the commissioners' stenographer.

Hearings were held yesterday on liquor licensee applications. Appearing were Norman Kline who seeks an off-sale liquor permit at his market at 700 North Mechanic Street; Fay Keiser, same type for Route 40 west of here; and Clifford B. Sisler Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Oldtown, beer and wine.

B & O Furloughs Show Increase

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21 (AP) — The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad put more of its workers on furlough notice today, bringing to 5,034 the number of jobs it is eliminating because of the soft coal shutdown.

Some 1,302 employes working on maintenance of equipment at shops and roundhouses throughout the 13-state system were notified they would not be needed after Thursday.

The equivalent of 3,500 jobs were cut out in the transportation department—mostly among the enginemen and trainmen who handle coal trains.

The train crews are not actually laid off. They take turns at the available jobs. With only a few coal trains running, their loss of time and wages was calculated as equivalent to the layoff of 3,500 men.

The maintenance of equipment furloughs are spread throughout the system but are heaviest at the B&O's main shops in Baltimore and at Cumberland, which handles all eastbound coal trains. There were 400 furloughs at each of these places.

In other board action, the commissioners accepted the beer and wine license of Henry J. Schoenadel, operator of Fairgo Tavern, who was fined $500 for selling beer to a minor.

Schoenadel surrendered his license and withdrew his application for a beer, wine and liquor permit.

After the session of the liquor board, Schoenadel gave a statement to the commissioners' stenographer.

Hearings were held yesterday on liquor licensee applications. Appearing were Norman Kline who seeks an off-sale liquor permit at his market at 700 North Mechanic Street; Fay Keiser, same type for Route 40 west of here; and Clifford B. Sisler Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Oldtown, beer and wine.

The remaining hearings for the four other applicants have been set November 13 in the Court House. They will be for Melvin Barber, who wants a restaurant-type liquor license; Romeo Basilio, tavern type for 19 North Front Street; Lawrence H. Sweitzer, Main Street, Frostburg, restaurant-type liquor license, and Kenneth T. Hager and Malo Mae Greene, off sale liquor permit for the Excello Market, North Mechanic Street.

B & O Furloughs Show Increase

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21 (AP) — The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad put more of its workers on furlough notice today, bringing to 5,034 the number of jobs it is eliminating because of the soft coal shutdown.

Some 1,302 employes working on maintenance of equipment at shops and roundhouses throughout the 13-state system were notified they would not be needed after Thursday.

The equivalent of 3,500 jobs were cut out in the transportation department—mostly among the enginemen and trainmen who handle coal trains.

The train crews are not actually laid off. They take turns at the available jobs. With only a few coal trains running, their loss of time and wages was calculated as equivalent to the layoff of 3,500 men.

The maintenance of equipment furloughs are spread throughout the system but are heaviest at the B&O's main shops in Baltimore and at Cumberland, which handles all eastbound coal trains. There were 400 furloughs at each of these places.

Flintstone at Beall

Rallying for field goals in the second half after the teams had battled to a 1-1 deadlock, Bruce High School defeated Beall High School of Frostburg yesterday at Westernport before the largest turnout of the soccer season and increased its lead in the battle for the W.M.I. League championship. The score was 3-1.

The victory was the third straight for Coach Augie Eichhorn's booters who battled Central of Lonaconing to a 1-1 deadlock in the season's opener.

Bruce has scored eight points to date while holding the opposition to two in four contests.

La Porta Ties Score

The Westernport eleven forged to the front in the opening period when Paul Haywood scored on a shot from scrimmage in front of the goal. Four minutes of the second period had elapsed when Allen LaPorta of Beall knotted the count with a field goal.

In the third period Harry Foreman of Bruce took a shot from midfield and when the ball hopped over the Beall goalie's head and between the uprights the home team registered what proved to be the winning tally. With four minutes gone in the final stanza, Percy Snyder of Bruce scored on a corner shot.

This goal, incidentally, gave Snyder the leadership of the league in scoring with four points to his credit. Snyder and "Buck" Duncan of Beall were tied at three-all prior to yesterday's game.

Flintstone Tops Barton

Coach Orville Jackson's Flintstone High booters crashed the win column for the first time yesterday when they topped Barton High School at Barton by the score of 2-0.

Field goals by Clites and Smith in the first and second periods enabled Flintstone to pull out of the W.M.I. League cellar, exchanging places with Barton.

Goalie Lough and Halfbacks Willison and Slider were Flintstone's best bets while Goalie Beeman and Halfback Bob Kirk played best for Barton. The lineups:

Yanks, Waiver Rule Blasted In Appeal Filed By Corbett

CINCINNATI, Oct. 21 (INS) — The New York Yankees and the waiver rule were blasted today by Jack Corbett, former owner of the El Paso, Tex., baseball club, in an appeal filed in the U. S. district court of appeals at Cincinnati.

The appeal also attacked baseball's reserve clause.

Corbett, of Los Angeles, who was fined for violating the reserve clause, and Walter Kowalski, former player, jointly filed the suit which was dismissed earlier this year in Cincinnati's district court.

At that time Judge John Druffel contended that baseball is a sport and not a business and therefore was not subject to Anti-Trust laws.

Corbett said:

"Trades by which Ewell Blackwell and other players go to the American League mock the so-called draft-proof waiver rule."

Landis Stands Out In Generals' Drill

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 21 (AP) — Washington and Lee snapped out of the practice doldrums today with a bone-rattling scrimmage that uncovered a new running star in halfback Eddie Landis, a Cumberland, Md., sophomore.

Landis, a defensive backfield operative, got his chance on offense today and took advantage of the opportunity by logging four gains of more than 20 yards.

Local Club Favors Hunting From Boats On River Here

ODC Seeks Special Pennsy License For Fishing On Lakes

A resolution urging the necessary steps to make it legal to hunt wild waterfowl from sneak boats on the Potomac River in Allegany county will be submitted for consideration at the fall session of the Maryland League of Sportsmen, Inc., which gets under way here Friday.

The resolution is being offered by the Cumberland Outdoor Club, host to the visiting sportsmen, at Sunday's business meeting at the Ali Ghan Shrine City Club.

Legal In Other Counties

The local sportsmen's organization points out that it is legal to hunt wild waterfowl from boats on the waters of the Monocacy, Frederick county, and the Potomac river in Washington, Frederick and Montgomery counties, and feels that a large number of wild waterfowl hunters residing in Allegany county desire to be accorded the same privilege for the waters of the Potomac in this county.

Another resolution would have the Pennsylvania Fish Commission issue special licenses to residents of Cumberland and other municipalities or towns or villages receiving their water supply from Lakes Gordon and Koon.

The resolution states that residents of Pennsylvania fish in said waters, maintained by the City of Cumberland, with Pennsylvania resident licenses and adds that residents of Pennsylvania owning property on Deep Creek Lake in Garrett County, Md., are permitted to purchase Maryland resident fishing licenses.

Therefore, the club feels that residents of Cumberland, LaVale, Cresaptown and other Maryland communities which directly support the operation of Lakes Koon and Gordon, either through direct taxes or water rental fees, should be entitled to a special fishing license.

The third resolution drafted by the Cumberland Outdoor Club urges that steps be taken to establish a "family" non-resident fishing license not to exceed one and one-half times the cost of the non-resident fishing license. The said licenses shall be made available only to residents of other states or provinces which extend similar courtesy to residents of Maryland.

O'Brien May Resign If League OK's Men

NEW YORK, Oct. 21. (AP)—The controversy over whether to accept players involved in the college fix scandals threatened today to break up the American Professional Basketball League.

John J. O'Brien, president of the circuit, said he is opposed to admitting the players. He has hinted he will quit his office if the league takes such action at its meeting Thursday.

Some members of the league are reported in favor of opening the door to the players, already banished by the larger National Basketball Association, and two teams have gone so far as to sign some of the talent.

Elmira has signed Bill Spivey, the former All-America at the University of Kentucky. Jersey City, bidding for a franchise in the circuit, has signed Alex Groza and Ralph Beard, former Kentucky players who helped form the Indianapolis Olympians in the NBA, and Sherman White, formerly with Long Island University.

O'Brien's office today listed league members as Wilkes-Barre, Scranton, Bridgeport, Elmira and Saratoga. Pateson and Jersey City, N. J., are listed as "indefinite."

Karl Robacher, president of the Elmira Colonels, has said he expects the league to sanction use of the players.

Flintstone at Beall

Rallying for field goals in the second half after the teams had battled to a 1-1 deadlock, Bruce High School defeated Beall High School of Frostburg yesterday at Westernport before the largest turnout of the soccer season and increased its lead in the battle for the W.M.I. League championship. The score was 3-1.

The victory was the third straight for Coach Augie Eichhorn's booters who battled Central of Lonaconing to a 1-1 deadlock in the season's opener.

Bruce has scored eight points to date while holding the opposition to two in four contests.

La Porta Ties Score

The Westernport eleven forged to the front in the opening period when Paul Haywood scored on a shot from scrimmage in front of the goal. Four minutes of the second period had elapsed when Allen LaPorta of Beall knotted the count with a field goal.

In the third period Harry Foreman of Bruce took a shot from midfield and when the ball hopped over the Beall goalie's head and between the uprights the home team registered what proved to be the winning tally. With four minutes gone in the final stanza, Percy Snyder of Bruce scored on a corner shot.

This goal, incidentally, gave Snyder the leadership of the league in scoring with four points to his credit. Snyder and "Buck" Duncan of Beall were tied at three-all prior to yesterday's game.

Flintstone Tops Barton

Coach Orville Jackson's Flintstone High booters crashed the win column for the first time yesterday when they topped Barton High School at Barton by the score of 2-0.

Field goals by Clites and Smith in the first and second periods enabled Flintstone to pull out of the W.M.I. League cellar, exchanging places with Barton.

Goalie Lough and Halfbacks Willison and Slider were Flintstone's best bets while Goalie Beeman and Halfback Bob Kirk played best for Barton. The lineups:

Yanks, Waiver Rule Blasted In Appeal Filed By Corbett

CINCINNATI, Oct. 21 (INS) — The New York Yankees and the waiver rule were blasted today by Jack Corbett, former owner of the El Paso, Tex., baseball club, in an appeal filed in the U. S. district court of appeals at Cincinnati.

The appeal also attacked baseball's reserve clause.

Corbett, of Los Angeles, who was fined for violating the reserve clause, and Walter Kowalski, former player, jointly filed the suit which was dismissed earlier this year in Cincinnati's district court.

At that time Judge John Druffel contended that baseball is a sport and not a business and therefore was not subject to Anti-Trust laws.

Corbett said:

"Trades by which Ewell Blackwell and other players go to the American League mock the so-called draft-proof waiver rule."

Landis Stands Out In Generals' Drill

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 21 (AP) — Washington and Lee snapped out of the practice doldrums today with a bone-rattling scrimmage that uncovered a new running star in halfback Eddie Landis, a Cumberland, Md., sophomore.

Landis, a defensive backfield operative, got his chance on offense today and took advantage of the opportunity by logging four gains of more than 20 yards.

Local Club Favors Hunting From Boats On River Here

ODC Seeks Special Pennsy License For Fishing On Lakes

A resolution urging the necessary steps to make it legal to hunt wild waterfowl from sneak boats on the Potomac River in Allegany county will be submitted for consideration at the fall session of the Maryland League of Sportsmen, Inc., which gets under way here Friday.

The resolution is being offered by the Cumberland Outdoor Club, host to the visiting sportsmen, at Sunday's business meeting at the All Ghan Shrine City Club.

Legal In Other Counties

The local sportsmen's organization points out that it is legal to hunt wild waterfowl from boats on the waters of the Monocacy, Frederick county, and the Potomac river in Washington, Frederick and Montgomery counties, and feels that a large number of wild waterfowl hunters residing in Allegany county desire to be accorded the same privilege for the waters of the Potomac in this county.

Another resolution would have the Pennsylvania Fish Commission issue special licenses to residents of Cumberland and other municipalities or towns or villages receiving their water supply from Lakes Gordon and Koon.

The resolution states that residents of Pennsylvania fish in said waters, maintained by the City of Cumberland, with Pennsylvania resident licenses and adds that residents of Pennsylvania owning property on Deep Creek Lake in Garrett County, Md., are permitted to purchase Maryland resident fishing licenses.

Therefore, the club feels that residents of Cumberland, LaVale, Cresaptown and other Maryland communities which directly support the operation of Lakes Koon and Gordon, either through direct taxes or water rental fees, should be entitled to a special fishing license.

The third resolution drafted by the Cumberland Outdoor Club urges that steps be taken to establish a "family" non-resident fishing license not to exceed one and one-half times the cost of the non-resident fishing license. The said licenses shall be made available only to residents of other states or provinces which extend similar courtesy to residents of Maryland.

Glenn Martin Coming • • • Old Cage Rivals Meet

Dale And Blaine Star • • • Neun And Triple Play

By C. V. BURNS

One of the most distinguished visitors coming to Cumberland this weekend for the tenth fall meeting of the League of Maryland Sportsmen, Inc., is the organization's president, Glenn L. Martin, who will preside over the sessions set for Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Glenn L. Martin

Mr. Martin is the internationally known airplane manufacturer and one of the country's outstanding conservationists.

He was born in Macksburg, Iowa, 66 years ago, and began in 1907 to build gliders when he was 21 years old. In 1908 he designed and built a pusher type airplane and taught himself to fly.

The following year he established one of the first airplane factories in the United States, constructed planes of various types, including monoplanes and water aircraft and gave many exhibition flights in the United States and Canada.

In 1911, Mr. Martin incorporated the Glenn L. Martin Company at Santa Ana, Calif., and moved the factory to Los Angeles a year later.

After merging his interests with the Wright Company in 1917, he withdrew and organized The Glenn L. Martin Company at Cleveland where the plant was completed in 1918. In 1929, he relocated his plant at Middle River, Baltimore, where it still is today.

Between 1929 and 1945 the Martin plant turned out the China Clipper, Hawaiian Clipper, Philippine Clipper, B-10, British Maryland, British Baltimore, B-26 Marauder, PBM and Mars airplanes.

In 1932, Mr. Martin was presented the Collier Trophy by President Franklin D. Roosevelt for the greatest achievement in aeronautics. The Sports Afield Trophy went to Mr. Martin in 1943 for being America's Most Outstanding Conservationist.

A baseball enthusiast, Mr. Martin is chairman of the Board of Directors of the All-American Baseball Association. He is director of Ducks Unlimited (Canada) and a member of the Washington Touchdown Club.

Seven years ago he founded the Glenn L. Martin College of Engineering and Aeronautical Science at the University of Maryland.

Mr. Martin is a great American and Cumberland should feel highly honored with his presence this weekend.

Among the spectators at the Washington and Lee-West Virginia football game here Saturday was George Parrish, one-time director of athletics at Potomac State School and one of the stars of the once famous Keyser Collegians basketball team.

"Big George" is now located at Charleston, W. Va.

He spied William V. Keegan, city finance commissioner, in the crowd and yelled:

"Say Bill, do you think you still can out-jump me?"

"I dunno," Bill replied, "but I'm willing to try."

Parrish and Keegan opposed each other on the court many times in those slambang battles of yesteryear.

Enoch P. Price, of Frostburg, reports that LaVega, Busy Beacon and Hunter's Glory, his race horses that fled from Waterford Downs during the fire there last week, were rounded up the next day at 3 p. m. on a mountain about 12 miles from the track.

Stanley, Hurry Beacon and Melissa W. were crippled in the mad scramble of thoroughbreds and Price doubts if the first two will race any more this year.

Some of the horses were found as far away as 16 miles from the track the next day.

After Waterford Downs winds up its meet, the Price stable will be vanned to Wheeling for the meeting which gets under way November 8.

Dale Hounshell and Blaine Morton, former Allegany High School athletes, played outstanding roles last weekend as Fairmont State's Falcons notched their third straight triumph of the season over Concord College's Mountain Lions, 21-19.

Morton, whose brilliant quarterbacking was one of the chief factors for the Fairmont victory, passed only once, completing that one toss to Cherocci for the first Fairmont score.

On another occasion, Fairmont went to the air with Cherocci doing the tossing and Morton the receiving. That gain helped pave the way for another Falcon TD.

Hounshell, who played his usual bone-crushing defensive game, set up the final Fairmont score when Concord fumbled in the second period. Dale pounced on the ball on the Concord 28-yard line. Three plays later the Falcons scored to make the count 21-0.

Since Elkins High School dropped two in a row to Buckhannon and Morgantown, the Tigers have rolled up 70 points and blanked Roosevelt-Wilson, Fairmont East and Weston in their last three starts. Weston was whipped Friday, 13-0. Allegany High plays at Elkins Saturday, November 8.

When Johnny Neun played first base for the Detroit Tigers he executed an unassisted triple play but the publicity he received for that feat came back to haunt him in later years, he told the writer at the recent World Series.

Neun says every time he talked baseball some fan would ask him to explain how he made the triple killing and he soon got tired of rehashing the story.

The year he managed the Cincinnati Reds, which he described as being as of the weakest teams ever to play in the majors, things went from bad to worse. The Reds were in the midst of a losing streak and Johnny tried everything possible to shake the jinx.

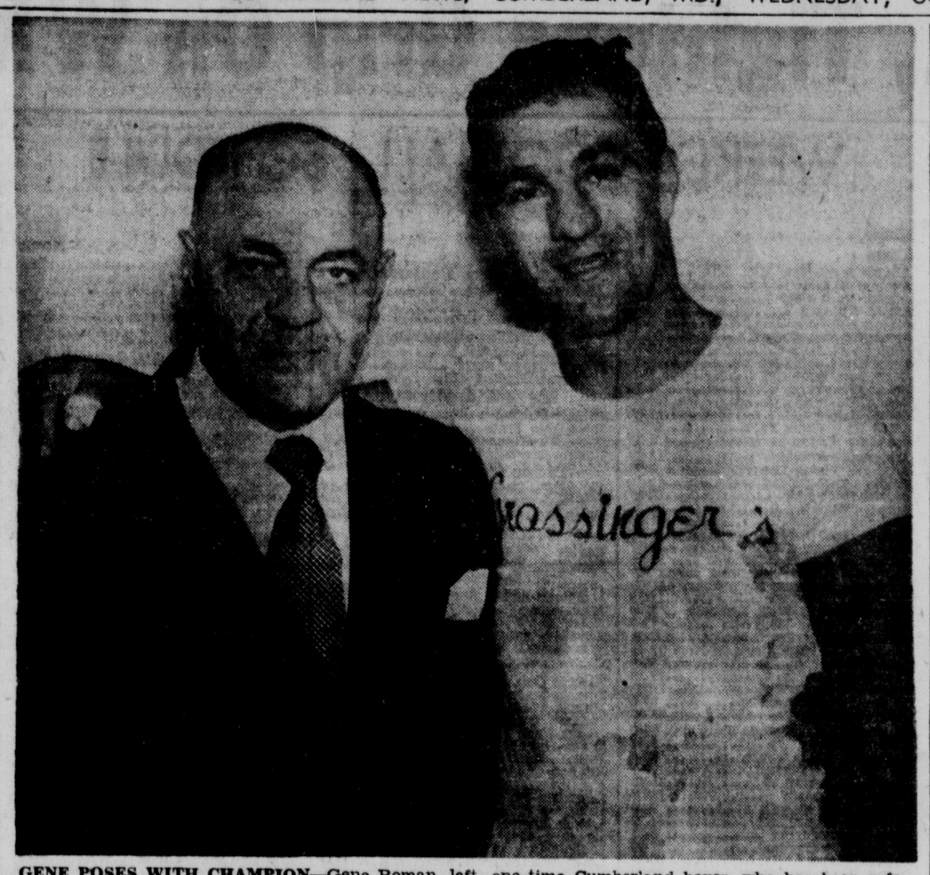

When the Reds returned to Crosley Field they continued to lose and Neun was deeper in the dumps.

Suddenly out of the grandstand one day came the following advice from a group of disgruntled fans:

—"Hey Neun, try a triple play. You're tried about everything else!"

Neun came out of the dugout and yelled back at his tormentors:

"Thanks fellows, that's a good idea. I'll get the players to try that, too. Maybe it will help us."

Jockey Hall Sues Owners Of "Blind" Horse For $90,000

TOWSON, Md., Oct. 21 (AP) — Jockey Howard Hall sued for $90,000 today, charging he was sent out to ride a blind horse.

The jockey's suit in Baltimore County Circuit Court is against Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Carver and Ellaine C. Peregoy of Baltimore, owners and trainer of a horse named Chalglass.

Hall was the jockey on Chalglass at Pimlico last October 31 when the horse wheeled to the left after breaking from the starting gate, bolted into another horse, struck the inside rail, and threw the jockey.

Hall charged the horse at the time had a disease which practically made it blind in both eyes. He alleges he received a number of serious injuries, including a permanently paralyzed left arm.

Randy Turpin Wins 4th Boxing Crown

LONDON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Britain's Randolph Turpin won the Empire middleweight championship at Harringay Arena tonight, outpointing George Angelo of South Africa by a wide margin in a dreary 15-round bout.

The title became vacant when Dave Sands of Australia, the holder, was killed in a truck crash.

Turpin now holds four championships. He is British middle and light heavyweight titleholder and European middleweight champion. He formerly was world middleweight champion.

Turpin, superbly fit, did not show up at his best against the backpeddling Angelo who has wonderful defensive boxing skill but no punch.

Turpin weighed 158¼, Angelo 157¾.

Philadelphia Eagles Ask Waivers On Scott

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21 (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Professional Football League have asked waivers on Clyde Scott, 175-pound halfback.

Scott, who played his college football at Annapolis and Arkansas, has been plagued by injuries throughout his four seasons with the Eagles.

Warm Weather Keeping Ducks, Geese In Canada

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP) — Bert Cartwright, naturalist employed by Ducks Unlimited and stationed in Canada, telegraphed headquarters today that unseasonable warmth was keeping huge flocks of ducks and geese in Canada.

He added that all the snow which fell in the blizzard of last week had been melted and the ground again was bare and providing the birds with sufficient food.

"When the next cold spell hits here, just tell the U. S. hunters to look out," he said.

Longest suspension bridge in the world is over Colorado's Royal Gorge. The bridge is 1,260 feet long, exclusive of its approaches.

Pirates, Reds Open On April 13, Boston Gets All-Star Tilt

CINCINNATI, Oct. 21 (AP)—The National League's schedule committee today announced 1953 opening day pairings and said next year's All-Star game would be held July 14 in Braves Field at Boston.

In keeping with tradition that Cincinnati always opens the season at home, the Reds will meet Pittsburgh here April 13, a day ahead of the other senior league openers.

The April 14 games will have Boston at Brooklyn, New York at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati at Chicago.

FACTORY TRAINING

-in Action!

...AND HERE'S WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU!

Something similar to the above scene occurs dozens of times daily across the country. Pontiac Factory Instructors are constantly at work teaching Pontiac Mechanics—including ours—the finer points of Pontiac Service. As a result, our mechanics are always "up-to-the-minute" on new and improved service techniques. They always know the best thing to do . . . and what not to do. You can be confident that we will always know how to do the best service job, at the lowest possible cost.

a record of achievement!

MORE PEOPLE switched to OLD EXPORT THIS YEAR THAN DURING ANY PREVIOUS YEAR IN HISTORY

The "Big Switch" to Old Export goes on!

Folks try it...like it...recommend it!

Sure the brewers of Old Export beer are proud! Proud of the fact that sales are now the highest in their 63 year history—proud of the year after year record of steady growth—but proudest of all of the way folks like it and recommend it to their friends. What's the reason?—try Old Export yourself and see what a difference Mountain Water makes. And remember—Old Export is consistent in quality...uniform in taste and flavor.

year after year...one fact is clear

ROOKIE STANDOUT—One of the real stars of pro football this season is Hugh McElhenny, former Washington ace, who is now eating up yardage for the high-flying San Francisco Forty Niners. Against Dallas he streaked 89 yards for a touchdown, scored on a 33-yard pass, carried the ball seven times and gained 170 yards. He gained 50 yards in 12 carries against Detroit, scored one touchdown and set up two others. Last Sunday when San Francisco beat the Chicago Bears in Chicago, 40-16, Hugh slammed 103 yards from scrimmage and roared to a 95-yard punt return TD.

Villanova Leading For Lambert Trophy

Mineral County Grand Jurors Indict Seven

No Action Taken Against Knealey

KEYSER — The Mineral County grand jury yesterday declined to indict Elwood Knealey on a charge of malicious assault upon his wife.

Mrs. Knealey was wounded several weeks ago in a shooting which followed a party at their home. The grand jury returned a not true bill in this case.

However, Mason George and Charles Edward Rockwell were indicted jointly on a charge of forcibly entering Fort Ashby High School, where a safe was broken open. Emma Kate Fadley, charged with them, was not indicted. She was said to have acted as a lookout on the job.

George also was named in an indictment charging theft of a tire and tube valued at $55. George, Rockwell and the Fadley woman already have been sentenced for burglaries and safecrackings in Allegany County, Md., and are serving time.

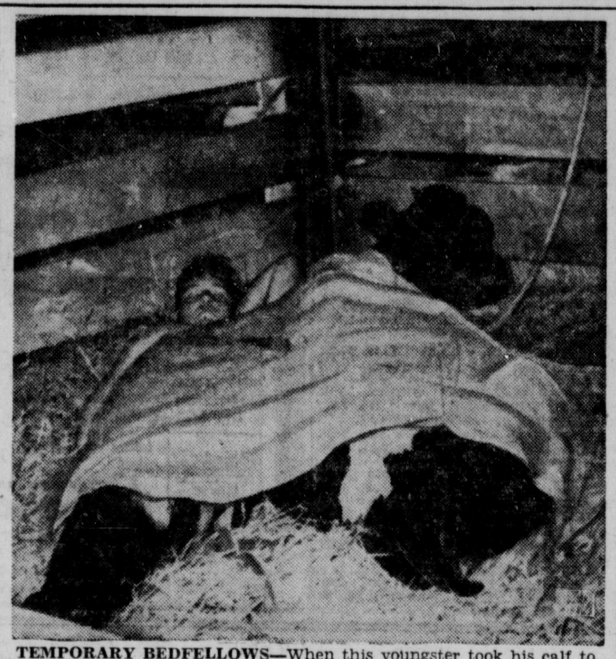

Louis James Rizer and Douglas White alias Douglas James, both of Baltimore, both were charged with burglary of the State Liquor Store at Ridgeley. David Clauze was indicted on five felony counts charging forgery of checks passed here.

Two misdemeanor indictments also were returned by the grand jury on which Clyde Gardner served as foreman. He is a Keyser business man.

Clarence Clark was charged with obstructing Keyser Police Officer James R. Spurling in performance of his duty. Michael V. Brannen was indicted on a charge of having insanitary conditions at his home on Stony Run.

Circuit Court here will convene at 10 o'clock this morning. Cases will be set for trial, some pleas will be received and motions for disposition of some cases will be heard. The term is expected to be short. Petit jurors are not expected to be called until after the November 4 election.

The court term may not exceed 10 days. Judge Ernest A. See will have a term opening in Grant County Circuit Court at Petersburg in about three weeks.

Bridge Proposed To Aid Traffic At Lonaconing

Mayor Alexander To Attend Meet

LONACONING — A proposal was made at the council meeting Monday to communicate with Charles M. See. chairman of the Courts Delegates in House of Delegates, on the possibility of having a bridge from West Main Street to Island Street to alleviate traffic congestion which arises when fire emergency on Main Street necessitates the blocking of moving east and west traffic on the through highway which runs through Lonaconing.

During the recent fire at C. C. Miller Sons garage, 28 West Main Street, all traffic had to be halted for safety precaution. A bridge connecting the Detmold district with the Island district would solve this problem.

At the present there is no way to re-route traffic.

Mayor Virgil Alexander was designated to represent the town at the convention of the Maryland Municipal League November 20-22 at the Hotel Alexander, Hagerstown. Besides Mayor Alexander, other members of the council or the city clerk may attend if they so desire.

The possibility of increasing the corporation limits of the town of Lonaconing could not be definitely ascertained at the Monday meeting. James Getty, city attorney, is checking further. The matter will be considered at another Council meeting.

The roads committee reports on repairs to city streets that have been completed by the town employes. Benjamin Zarger appeared before the council to seek the town's help in eliminating the damage to his fence at his property on Douglas Avenue caused by cars turning and striking his fence. It is possible that railing will be placed at the turning point.

Frank Trost reported to the council that a pine tree is close to his chimney and asked for the town's aid in correcting the situation.

Fred Stoudt, chairman of lights committee, had no information to report on the Potomac Edison Company's work for the town lighting.

The next meeting is slated for Monday, November 3.

Mayor Alexander To Attend Meet

LONACONING — A proposal was made at the council meeting Monday to communicate with Charles M. See, chairman of the Courts Delegates in House of Delegates, on the possibility of having a bridge from West Main Street to Island Street to alleviate traffic congestion which arises when fire emergency on Main Street necessitates the blocking of moving east and west traffic on the through highway which runs through Lonaconing.

During the recent fire at C. C. Miller Sons garage, 28 West Main Street, all traffic had to be halted for safety precaution. A bridge connecting the Detmold district with the Island district would solve this problem.

At the present there is no way to re-route traffic.

Mayor Virgil Alexander was designated to represent the town at the convention of the Maryland Municipal League November 20-22 at the Hotel Alexander, Hagerstown. Besides Mayor Alexander, other members of the council or the city clerk may attend if they so desire.

The possibility of increasing the corporation limits of the town of Lonaconing could not be definitely ascertained at the Monday meeting. James Getty, city attorney, is checking further. The matter will be considered at another Council meeting.

The roads committee reports on repairs to city streets that have been completed by the town employes. Benjamin Zarger appeared before the council to seek the town's help in eliminating the damage to his fence at his property on Douglas Avenue caused by cars turning and striking his fence. It is possible that railing will be placed at the turning point.

Frank Trost reported to the council that a pine tree is close to his chimney and asked for the town's aid in correcting the situation.

Fred Stoudt, chairman of lights committee, had no information to report on the Potomac Edison Company's work for the town lighting.

The next meeting is slated for Monday, November 3.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21 (INS)—Very happy, indeed, is Joe Pasternak that he gets Tony Martin for Esther Williams next picture, "Easy To Love," originally called "Cypress Garden."

This will take Tony and Esther to Florida. Tony sings, of course — you couldn't think of him in any picture without a song.

I thought when I heard that Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., had rented the National Studio at Elstree, outside of London, it meant that he and Mary Lee were not coming back. But young Doug will be back before very long, after he starts the thirty-nine half hour TV dramas he's making in London.

However, I know that Doug has sold his TV show in America and he'll be back here on business very soon. Also, he and Mary Lee have refused many lucrative offers for their house in West Los Angeles.

Later Doug plans to produce "Lochinvar" as a stage play and open in Scotland.

Over the weekend Lester Cowan did the unusual by signing Rouben Mamoulian to act. Rouben, who is himself a fine director on stage and screen, will play a Broadway director in "From Street to Broadway." He's in good company with Tallulah Bankhead, Henry Fonda, etc.

When Rouben finishes the Cowan movie, he's going to Spain to start preparations for still another film version of "Carmen," which will be made independently.

It's golden apple and raspberry time for the Hollywood Women's Press Club. The ballots went out today and the most cooperative actresses nominated are Doris Day, Janet Leigh, Virginia Mayo and Marilyn Monroe. The most cooperative men are Jeff Chandler and Tony Curtis.

Thumbs are turned down on June Allyson, Lana Turner, Esther Williams, Rita Hayworth and Jane Wyman. The actors who are up for uncooperative award are Marlon Brando and Mario Lanza.

As far as the girls are concerned, this certainly wouldn't be my list. I don't see how anyone could call Jane Wyman uncooperative, or June Allyson, or Lana.

The deal for MGM to make "St. Louis Woman," the 1946 Broadway hit, may already be closed as far as I know. I know that Arthur Freed is interested in buying it as a starring vehicle for Gene Kelly.

This is the show that had such songs as "Come Rain or Come Shine" and Pearl Bailey's famous "A Woman's Prerogative." Harold Arlen and Johnny Mercer did the lyrics and the music.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Wherever you go political discussions hold the center of the stage. Katie Goetz, a Democrat who has gone Republican, held forth at Julie Kline's birthday party at great length.

Louise Fazenda Wallis, whom I haven't seen for many a day, was with Minna, Julie's sister. There were many, many people there honoring Julie, who does so much in a charitable way.

At La Rue George Raft and a pretty redhead were having dinner with Ann and Arthur Stebbins. George is off for Rome, where he'll make a picture.

Sight of the week is Gordon MacRae's new butch haircut, which astounded even his wife.

Irene Dunne gave a luncheon at the Beverly Hills Hotel for the visiting Italian stars and producers. I was sorry to miss it, but I was away over the weekend.

Next day, Irene went to New York, ditto Mrs. Jules Stein, while Rosalind Russell went to Washington in connection with some business on on her picture, "Never Wave at a WAC."

Elizabeth Patterson, veteran character actress, is in Good Samaritan Hospital for medical treatment.

At the Sportsmen's Lodge Cara Williams dining with Charles Isaac, Eva Gabor's ex. Cara was recently divorced from Jockey Alan Grey.

Charlie Chaplin, Jr., and Barbara Ruick are a romantic item.

Marie McDonald has been in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for treatment of a virus condition. She's taking no chances on losing her expected baby.

Bing Crosby gets back in town this week from location scenes in Paris. He'll find Dixie feeling much better.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Some historians claim America once was called Fu Sang and that a Buddhist missionary visited it as early as 450 A.D.

OUT-OF-CLASS ASSIGNMENTS

by Garry C. Meyers, Ph.D.

If the school day of high school were long enough to provide several hours for the students to prepare out-of-class assignments, those students who used these study periods well might not need to bother much about homework.

But with the various extracurricular activities and the short school day, sometimes with half-day sessions, the average high school student may devote little or no time at school on out-of-class assignments. Then if he studies none at home, when and where does he study?

Little Individual Study

Not much individual studying goes on in the regular classroom. The average high school student "recites" there or listens to lectures or discussions. So far as I can ascertain, he does very little individual studying of any assignment there. If he has a very good memory and is fairly attentive in class, he may get by with fair grades leveled down to standards for the average of his class. But the student who does so with practically no studying on his own during a study period at school or at home, can hardly be working up to his native learning ability.

Of course, some teachers are supposed to set aside a portion of each class period for students to study individually as they might study at home or in the "study hall." But a great many of these teachers supposed to have a study period during the regular class hour may soon find this portion growing shorter, and the recitation and lecture portion growing longer and longer.

With more and more pressure from parents to abandon homework assignments, and with the home a less and less favorable place to do homework, a good many teachers and school principals conclude, "What's the use? Only a few of the students do the homework anyway."

Less Homework Done

So then, no matter what the supposed practice in assigning homework may be, less and less of it is being done, it seems, year by year. In the meanwhile, with schools crowded and teachers having larger and larger classes, there appears to be less and less study in class or outside. Then we wonder why so few high school students seem to master much from books.

It's the parents of the bright youths possessing promise of succeeding at college or technical school who should be the most eager for these youths to prepare outside assignments at school or home or both. Then, our children have more to learn today than we had. They would seem, therefore, to need more out-of-class preparation rather than less.

Many a bright youth fails at college because he has not learned to do faithfully and regularly out-of-class assignments in high school. Of course, some eager youths of high native mentality who study hard in high school or college, lag or fail because they have not learned to get good results from their study efforts. For these I have written a bulletin, "Tips for Students" (to be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper).

OUT-OF-CLASS ASSIGNMENTS

by Garry C. Meyers, Ph.D.

If the school day of high school were long enough to provide several hours for the students to prepare out-of-class assignments, those students who used these study periods well might not need to bother much about homework.

But with the various extracurricular activities and the short school day, sometimes with half-day sessions, the average high school student may devote little or no time at school on out-of-class assignments. Then if he studies none at home, when and where does he study?

Little Individual Study

Not much individual studying goes on in the regular classroom. The average high school student "recites" there or listens to lectures or discussions. So far as I can ascertain, he does very little individual studying of any assignment there. If he has a very good memory and is fairly attentive in class, he may get by with fair grades leveled down to standards for the average of his class. But the student who does so with practically no studying on his own during a study period at school or at home, can hardly be working up to his native learning ability.

Of course, some teachers are supposed to set aside a portion of each class period for students to study individually as they might study at home or in the "study hall." But a great many of these teachers supposed to have a study period during the regular class hour may soon find this portion growing shorter, and the recitation and lecture portion growing longer and longer.

With more and more pressure from parents to abandon homework assignments, and with the home a less and less favorable place to do homework, a good many teachers and school principals conclude, "What's the use? Only a few of the students do the homework anyway."

Less Homework Done

So then, no matter what the supposed practice in assigning homework may be, less and less of it is being done, it seems, year by year. In the meanwhile, with schools crowded and teachers having larger and larger classes, there appears to be less and less study in class or outside. Then we wonder why so few high school students seem to master much from books.

It's the parents of the bright youths possessing promise of succeeding at college or technical school who should be the most eager for these youths to prepare outside assignments at school or home or both. Then, our children have more to learn today than we had. They would seem, therefore, to need more out-of-class preparation rather than less.

Many a bright youth fails at college because he has not learned to do faithfully and regularly out-of-class assignments in high school. Of course, some eager youths of high native mentality who study hard in high school or college, lag or fail because they have not learned to get good results from their study efforts. For these I have written a bulletin, "Tips for Students" (to be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper).

Campaign Train Tales

That newsreel film of the Presidential candidates you see on "Camel Caravan" and "Today" is brought to you at the risk of life and limb. In this campaign, NBC has found that the fastest way to get film from place to place is via a two-wheel motorcycle ridden by a hell-for-leather driver named Scotty McLeod.

John Crosby

These messengers with packs of film strapped to their backs and wearing goggles are known in the trade as Space Cadets. Sometimes, fairly frequently, they must drive at top speed, picking up and delivering film for 24 hours. McLeod has averaged 65 miles an hour on a long trip which gives you some idea of their top speed. When Eisenhower was in South Bend, Scotty left Chicago at 7 a. m., rode 100 miles to South Bend, picked up film and tape from the Eisenhower train, and drove the 100 miles back to Chicago, doing the last lap at 90 miles an hour.

After dropping off the film at the lab, he drove back to meet the Eisenhower train again at the city limits, picked up more film, dropped it off at the lab and picked up the film he'd left earlier. It had been processed by then and he took it to the cutting room in time to make the Camel show. He left immediately on another break-neck trip to Ottawa, Ill., about 125 miles away. The awed NBC news staff swears he left Chicago at 6:45 p. m. and got to Ottawa at 8 p. m. Scotty picked up film and tape and left immediately for Chicago again. His day ended at 5:45 p. m. just 22¾ hours after it began. That's not even an unusual day for Scotty.

Filming the story is another headache. Frank Bourgholtzer who is in charge of the NBC coverage on the Stevenson train has wired the following description. "To film a whistle stop speech means leaping from the train with a box containing camera and amplifier, cable and microphone weighing 80 to 100 pounds, plus a power unit, plus a silent camera. You run three cars back to set up the equipment. By this time the crowd has surged in tight against the rear platform and there is a fierce fight to wedge through the crowd into position.

"There is never enough room to get a decent picture. There is a frantic unloading of equipment, hooking this cable into that piece of gear, getting a microphone up, checking to see if sound and film are operating properly and by that time the candidate is speaking. You shoot the speech until your film runs out, then gather your equipment together, fight back through the crowd and run like the dickens to the door of your car. By this time, likely as not, the train is moving. After all, it stopped only for five or ten minutes altogether. This goes on all day, varied with interviews and whatever else can be thought up to tell the story."

It's a bone-breaking schedule the newsmen live by, says Bourgholtzer. "The reporter can produce only a blank look if questioned as to the name of the last town, the name of the next town, and the day of the week or, worst of all, the date. The train is timeless—a succession of 16, 18 and 20 hour days that blend together into a detached segment of a lifetime, totally divorced from anything resembling normal living. Then there's the question of laundry and a bath—but that reminds me. I've got five minutes before the next stop. Think I'll change my shirt."

Actually, these whistle stop speeches are pretty repititious. But they don't dare miss filming any of them because Stevenson might uncork something hot which everyone would then have except NBC. There have been quite a few mishaps. At New Haven, a band moved in behind Stevenson's car and in front of the camera truck. By the time the truck got in, Stevenson was already speaking. They hooked up the equipment in a tremendous hurry and handed the microphone to a man on the platform. The photographers got a fine picture of this gentleman laughing at Stevenson's jokes. But they didn't get the jokes or the sound of the laughter. The sound equipment went sour.

Stevenson's speech on Labor Day in Detroit was filmed at 12:30 and was to have been flown to Chicago for processing directly afterwards. The one-hour plane trip took five hours with seven emergency landings. Wind and rain pitched the plane around so badly the equipment had to be lashed down. Scotty picked up th film and rushed it to the laboratory, then to the studio for the Camel Caravan. He got there just 40 seconds too late for the show.

There have been quite a few mishaps. At New Haven, a band moved in behind Stevenson's car and in front of the camera truck. By the time the truck got in, Stevenson was already speaking. They hooked up the equipment in a tremendous hurry and handed the microphone to a man on the platform. The photographers got a fine picture of this gentleman laughing at Stevenson's jokes. But they didn't get the jokes or the sound of the laughter. The sound equipment went sour.

Stevenson's speech on Labor Day in Detroit was filmed at 12:30 and was to have been flown to Chicago for processing directly afterwards. The one-hour plane trip took five hours with seven emergency landings. Wind and rain pitched the plane around so badly the equipment had to be lashed down. Scotty picked up th film and rushed it to the laboratory, then to the studio for the Camel Caravan. He got there just 40 seconds too late for the show.

"Off the Record," the wry, exciting and often hilarious book of never-told-before stories by foreign correspondents and war reporters—written by members of the Overseas Press Club of America and published today by Doubleday—has a searching chapter on censors. Sample story (by Curt W. Heymann):

"During the U. N. Assembly in Paris the foreign minister of a Soviet-bloc nation—whom I shall call Stanislaus Stinkovich — broke the Iron Curtain pattern and spoke with newsmen occasionally and off the record.

"This encouraged me to ask him one day for an interview. 'Submit to me three questions in writing,' he said. I did and, when I saw him, read my queries from my carbon copy.

"Question No. 1—No comment. Question No. 2—No comment. Question No. 3—No comment. I thanked Mr. Stinkovich and was ready to go. But he called me back.

"'By the way,' he said, 'don't quote me.'"

Hollywood's Most

better cared for children than Christina, Christopher, Cynthia and Cathy.

John has been criticized for being too severe with them, but I know that she believes discipline is necessary, and it isn't easy for a busy career woman to be responsible for four young lives. Joan is one of the few unmarried women in Hollywood, or in this country for that matter, who has been allowed to adopt children.

I say Joan is exciting and dramatic because twice in her life when her career seemed to be at a standstill, she came back with a terrific bang by her own efforts.

She was so good in "Mildred Pierce" at a time when everyone said she was through, that she won an Academy Award. This gave her a complete new lease on her screen career.

This year she made "Sudden Fear" as an independent venture, and she'll make a fortune with it because it's a box office smash.

I was one of the first to see the picture. It was shown in a projection room, but typical of Joan, she had champagne, caviar, and extra men in attendance. After it was over she rushed up to me, grabbed both my hands and said intensely, "tell me the truth. I know you will."

I said, "you've got a money maker and the picture is a great triumph for you as an actress too."

Yes. Joan is easily one of Hollywood's ten most exciting women.

IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF PAUL MORGAN, ALSO KNOWN AS JAMES MORGAN, NO. 22907 EQUITY IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR ALLEGANY COUNTY, MARYLAND.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of the Petition in the above case is to change the name of Paul Morgan, also known as James Morgan, to that of James Ravenscroft nunc pro tunc as of March 14th, 1921.

The Petition states that the Petitioner resides in Allegany County, Maryland, and that the reason for changing the Petitioner's name is on account of the conflict between his birth records and his civil records.

It is thereupon this 30th day of September, 1952, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, sitting in Equity, ordered that the Petitioner cause a copy of this order with the object and substance of the Petition to be inserted in some daily newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once a week for three successive weeks, before the 24th day of October, giving notice to whom it may concern to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 14th day of November, 1952, to show cause, if any there be, why a decree shall not be passed as prayed.

Daily Bridge Lesson
by Shepard Barclay

PROBABLY 4-2 OR 2-4

WHEN the opponents hold six cards of your trump suit, the most likely single division of them is three in each hand. Next in order of probability comes four with the left-hand opponent and two with his partner, or four with the man at your right and two at your left. The combination of those last two lineups—with four trumps in some opponent's hand opposite two in the other's—occurs appreciably oftener than the even split, on a ratio of about or nearly 3 to 2. That's why you usually have trouble with only four trumps in the declarer's hand opposite just three in the dummy.

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

That contract was lambasted two tricks. West led the diamond 4, which the K won. The heart J was finessed to the Q and the diamond A took the 3 return. The spade 2 to the A was followed by the spade J finesse to the Q, whereupon the diamond Q lead made South use his third trump for ruffing. The club 3 was won by the A, and the fourth diamond from West was ruffed by South's last trump. The declarer was able to score the heart A, ruff the 10 with the dummy's last trump and score the club K. But that made only eight tricks, and he then had to give East two tricks with trumps to be down two.

South was very much put out over North's raise from 3-Spades to 4-Spades.

"Why did you do that?" he asked.

"Simply because I had better support for your spades than your hearts," he pleaded.

"You certainly did not," rebutted South. "My two bids of hearts before the spade bid showed at least six cards in the first suit and only four in the second. Two cards make better support for a six-card suit than three do for a four-card suit. In the first case we have eight trumps and in the second only seven. As the cards were, it would have been easy to make 4-Hearts, which you should have bid. Even 3-No Trumps by you would have made a better contract than the 4-Spades, since you had stoppers of all other suits."

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-Diamond, West 1-Heart, South 1-Spade, West 2-Hearts and North 4-Spades, what should West lead?

Market Declines As Miners' Strike Hits Rail Operations

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—The stock market declined today in a quiet manner as the spreading soft coal strike started to hamper railroad operations.

The railroad section of the market was under some selling pressure today and would have declined considerably more as a group if it hadn't been for gains by a few key carriers.

Outstanding was Seaboard Air Line Railroad up 2¾ at 108½. The company disclosed that as a result of the conversion offer that expired last Friday, around 69,000 shares of preferred had been converted into common.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 10 cents at $104.70 with the industrial component off 50 cents, railroads off 20 cents, and the utilities up 20 cents.

Pacific Mills lost ½ at 29. After the market closed, directors announced the quarterly dividend due at this time had been omitted. Quarterly payments previously were 50 cents.

"Pacific Mills has continued to feel the effects of the unfavorable conditions that have beset the textile industry during the past year and a half," said directors.

Nine out of the ten most active issues were higher. At the top of the list was Servel up ⅛ at 11.

"Off the Record," the wry, exciting and often hilarious book of never-told-before stories by foreign correspondents and war reporters—written by members of the Overseas Press Club of America and published today by Doubleday—has a searching chapter on censors. Sample story (by Curt W. Heymann):

"During the U. N. Assembly in Paris the foreign minister of a Soviet-bloc nation—whom I shall call Stanislaus Stinkovich — broke the Iron Curtain pattern and spoke with newsmen occasionally and off the record.

"This encouraged me to ask him one day for an interview. 'Submit to me three questions in writing,' he said. I did and, when I saw him, read my queries from my carbon copy.

"Question No. 1—No comment. Question No. 2—No comment. Question No. 3—No comment. I thanked Mr. Stinkovich and was ready to go. But he called me back.

"'By the way,' he said, 'don't quote me.'"

Hollywood's Most

better cared for children than Christina, Christopher, Cynthia and Cathy.

John has been criticized for being too severe with them, but I know that she believes discipline is necessary, and it isn't easy for a busy career woman to be responsible for four young lives. Joan is one of the few unmarried women in Hollywood, or in this country for that matter, who has been allowed to adopt children.

I say Joan is exciting and dramatic because twice in her life when her career seemed to be at a standstill, she came back with a terrific bang by her own efforts.

She was so good in "Mildred Pierce" at a time when everyone said she was through, that she won an Academy Award. This gave her a complete new lease on her screen career.

This year she made "Sudden Fear" as an independent venture, and she'll make a fortune with it because it's a box office smash.

I was one of the first to see the picture. It was shown in a projection room, but typical of Joan, she had champagne, caviar, and extra men in attendance. After it was over she rushed up to me, grabbed both my hands and said intensely, "tell me the truth. I know you will."

I said, "you've got a money maker and the picture is a great triumph for you as an actress too."

Yes. Joan is easily one of Hollywood's ten most exciting women.

Daily Bridge Lesson
by Shepard Barclay

PROBABLY 4-2 OR 2-4

WHEN the opponents hold six cards of your trump suit, the most likely single division of them is three in each hand. Next in order of probability comes four with the left-hand opponent and two with his partner, or four with the man at your right and two at your left. The combination of those last two lineups—with four trumps in some opponent's hand opposite two in the other's—occurs appreciably oftener than the even split, on a ratio of about or nearly 3 to 2. That's why you usually have trouble with only four trumps in the declarer's hand opposite just three in the dummy.

	♠ A 6 5 ♥ J 6 ♦ K 9 7 ♣ K 10 5 4 2
♠ Q 7 ♥ Q 2 ♦ Q 10 5 ♣ 4 3	N W E S	♠ 10 8 4 ♥ 3 ♦ K 5 4 ♣ J 8 2

That contract was lambasted two tricks. West led the diamond 4, which the K won. The heart J was finessed to the Q and the diamond A took the 3 return. The spade 2 to the A was followed by the spade J finesse to the Q, whereupon the diamond Q lead made South use his third trump for ruffing. The club 3 was won by the A, and the fourth diamond from West was ruffed by South's last trump. The declarer was able to score the heart A, ruff the 10 with the dummy's last trump and score the club K. But that made only eight tricks, and he then had to give East two tricks with trumps to be down two.

South was very much put out over North's raise from 3-Spades to 4-Spades.

"Why did you do that?" he asked.

"Simply because I had better support for your spades than your hearts," he pleaded.

"You certainly did not," rebutted South. "My two bids of hearts before the spade bid showed at least six cards in the first suit and only four in the second. Two cards make better support for a six-card suit than three do for a four-card suit. In the first case we have eight trumps and in the second only seven. As the cards were, it would have been easy to make 4-Hearts, which you should have bid. Even 3-No Trumps by you would have made a better contract than the 4-Spades, since you had stoppers of all other suits."

Tomorrow's Problem

If South bids 1-Diamond, West 1-Heart, South 1-Spade, West 2-Hearts and North 4-Spades, what should West lead?

Market Declines As Miners' Strike Hits Rail Operations

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—The stock market declined today in a quiet manner as the spreading soft coal strike started to hamper railroad operations.

The railroad section of the market was under some selling pressure today and would have declined considerably more as a group if it hadn't been for gains by a few key carriers.

Outstanding was Seaboard Air Line Railroad up 2¾ at 108½. The company disclosed that as a result of the conversion offer that expired last Friday, around 69,000 shares of preferred had been converted into common.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 10 cents at $104.70 with the industrial component off 50 cents, railroads off 20 cents, and the utilities up 20 cents.

Pacific Mills lost ½ at 29. After the market closed, directors announced the quarterly dividend due at this time had been omitted. Quarterly payments previously were 50 cents.

"Pacific Mills has continued to feel the effects of the unfavorable conditions that have beset the textile industry during the past year and a half," said directors.

Nine out of the ten most active issues were higher. At the top of the list was Servel up ⅛ at 11.

It was followed by American Telephone up ⅝ at 153¼, Boeing up ¾ at 38, Socony-Vacuum up ⅛ at 33⅝, and South American Gold & Platinum up ⅛ at 5½.

Next was Packard, which was alone on the downside, off ⅛ at 4¼.

Bethany Church To Mark Anniversary Here Sunday

Rev. Troy R. Brady, president of Shenandoah College, Dayton, Va., will be guest speaker at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. services Sunday during the anniversary and homecoming program of Bethany Evangelical United Brethren Church.

Following the morning worship service and the Sunday School hour, dinner will be served by the ladies of the church in the social hall.

At the 2 p. m. service, in addition to Rev. Brady as speaker, former pastors of the church have been invited to speak. They are Rev. H. E. Richardson, now retired and residing at Cherry Run, W. Va., Rev. John E. Oliver of Winchester, Va., Rev. L. G. Bridgers of Potomac Park, and his son Rev. Robert L. Bridgers of Keyser, and Rev. L. P. Tederick of Defiance, Va., who both attended Bethany Church before entering the ministry.

Bethany Church was chartered here in 1907, and the corner stone laid in 1908, when a concrete block building was erected at the present location.

In 1941, fire extensively destroyed the roof of this building and the present building was completed in 1941, under the pastorate of Rev. C. K. Welch who is now commencing his 15th year as pastor of the charge.

The present building has a main worship unit, three assembly worship rooms for the Adult, Young People and Children's Department of the Sunday School, 23 class rooms for teaching the graded lessons, a social hall, heating plant and a modern kitchen.

The total cost of the present completed building was $33,500.00 of which $3,000.00 is to be paid and this debt under present plans will be liquidated in 1954.

Scout Leaders Training Course Begins Tomorrow

Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, will begin two series of training courses tomorrow, designed to train new adult Cub and Scout leaders.

Cumberland District will begin its five-series course tomorrow with an opening session at 7:30 p. m. at Central YMCA. The next four courses will be held on the next four Thursdays from October 30 to November 20.

The local course is a Cub Scout basic training course and all assistants, pack committeemen, Den Mothers and Dads, prospective leaders and commissioners are invited to attend the session.

Officials said the course is also open to any interested persons outside the Cumberland District in the Council area. Any organization considering forming a Cub Pack may have prospective leaders in attendance.

Estel Oster, former Cubmaster of Gephart School PTA Pack 3, is the course's Cub master and he will be assisted by several Cubbers from various packs in the district.

The newest training methods and Cubbing visual aids will be used in the course by experienced instructors, officials said. The first meeting will take up fundamentals of Cubbing and the general organization of Cub Scouting. It will feature a number of games for use at den and pack meetings. There is no charge for the course.

The second course which will begin tomorrow at 8 p. m. at State Teachers College, Frostburg, is a four-series training period called the Basic Scout Leader Training Course.

Although the course is being sponsored by the Mountain District, all adult Scouters and prospective Scoutmasters in the Council territory are invited to take part in the session.

The training course will begin tomorrow night and will be held every Thursday thereafter until November 13. Officials are also arranging for an outdoor session following the last meeting on November 13.

Scout officials said persons completing either of the two courses satisfactorily will receive Basic Training Course Certificates. The two courses will also mark the first step toward the Scout three-year training award.

Beall, Mahoney Hold Debate In Telecast Series

Candidates Unable To Answer Questions

By JACK DAVIS

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21 (AP)—Maryland's Senatorial candidates met in a televised debate tonight that ended with each trying to out-talk the other, with neither being heard.

About all that was audible for the last two minutes was a jumble of words punctuated with "I do's" and "I don'ts" from George P. Mahoney, Democrat, and J. Glenn Beall, Republican.

Because neither was able to answer the other's questions, they agreed to continue the debate "later, on our own time."

It was by far the liveliest of the "face-to-face" series over WMAR which has brought together opposing congressional candidates from all parts of the state.

Mahoney asked Beall why he voted to cut the funds for schools.

"And is it true, did you speak only 28 minutes on the floor during the 10 years you were in the House? And what about your absentee and voting record?" Mahoney asked.

"George, you're dealing in half truths," Beall retorted. "That's the same way you were with former governor Lane and Rep. Sasscer. You deal only in half truths.

"My voting record is one of the best in the House," Beall added.

Mahoney also asked Beall:

"Why did you try to slip through a bill in the closing days of congress to give the Wilmer Engineering Co. in Baltimore a quarter million dollar claim after it already had been turned down by the court of claims?"

Beall's answer was lost in the splatter of words from both candidates.

Previously, Beall asked Mahoney why he, as a Democratic national committeeman, never raised his voice against the corruption and influence of communism "present in Washington."

"George, you even made speeches for Truman and Boyle," Beall declared.

"No I didn't. I never did," Mahoney replied.

Beall asked the same question again and got the same answer.

"Well, I'm glad to hear you say it," Beall replied.

The 15-minute program, extended for a few minutes by the station after the shouting started, began quietly enough with each candidate taking three minutes for statements.

Beall, who opened, said he would deal with corruption, communism and lack of a foreign policy of the Truman administration.

"Everyone knows how the administration has yielded to the influence of mink coats, deep freezes and the like. It's all to blame on its long tenure in office.

"The people are no longer represented by the government. It used to be that the people were commanders and their government slaves. Now it's different."

Truman To Spend Half Hour In City Tomorrow

President Harry S. Truman will spend half an hour in Cumberland tomorrow when his whistle-stopping "Give 'em Hell Special" arrives here during a five-state campaign tour.

Truman, campaigning for Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, Democratic nominee for the Presidency, will arrive here at 4 p. m. and leave at 4:30.

A local band will play and Mayor Roy W. Eves will greet the President, as will local party dignitaries. William L. Wilson Jr., chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for the county, is in charge of arrangements for Truman's visit. Michael F. Prendergast, co-chairman of the campaign committee, will assist.

The President will arrive here from Meyersdale, Pa., and will go to Harpers Ferry, W. Va., when he leaves here on his way to Washington.

Democrat Paper Backs Ike, Nixon And Rep. Beall

The Easton Star-Democrat, traditionally Democratic, has announced its support of General Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Presidency.

In an editorial, the Talbot County weekly newspaper said the voters of that county, although predominantly Democratic, have given majorities to the GOP Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates ever since 1936.

The Star-Democrat also voiced support of Rep. J. Glenn Beall in his bid for election to the U. S. Senate. Said the Star-Democrat: "He has served his constituents in Western Maryland well, and now seeks to serve all of the people of Maryland. We heartily endorse his candidacy."

News In Brief

The Board of Zoning Appeals will meet tomorrow at City Hall in the council chamber beginning at 8 p. m.

Miss Judith Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Johnson, Cresaptown, has been named a member of the glee club at Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va. She is enrolled in the freshman class.

Break Seen In Current Cold Spell

The Weatherman predicts a break in the current cold snap today, but first, temperatures are expected to fall below record early this morning.

The Weather Bureau said mercury will plunge to below 20 degrees this morning with a gradual warming today and tomorrow.

Yesterday temperature dropped to 21 degrees, a record low for October in Cumberland according to records at Constitution Park weather station. There was 21-degree readings on October 22, 1930, and October 28, 1942.

Last night the Weather Bureau said 20 per cent of the Western Maryland apple crop, still on the trees, faced the threat of being wiped out this morning by sub-freezing temperatures.

According to one orchardist, Maurice S. Martin, when it gets below 20 the apples freeze hard and thaw soft. They aren't good for anything but clear or immediate processing.

Even at higher temperatures, he said, when the apples freeze the growers have to let them stay on the tree until they thaw out.

"If we touch the apples when they are frozen," he added, "every spot we touch with our fingers turns black."

Low temperatures in nearby communities yesterday showed Deal, Pa., 16; Thomas, W. Va., 18; Frostburg, 19; LaVale, 20; near Frederick, 24, and Hagerstown, 22.

The local weather station at Constitution Park recorded low as 21, high temperature, 53, and at 9 p. m. mercury stood at 44 degrees. Humidity at 6 p. m. was 35 per cent.

Billiard Hall Operators Fined On Slots Charge

Suspended Sentence Figures In Case

George E. Button and John J. Carney, trading as Tip Top Billiards, 164 Baltimore Street, yesterday were fined $500 and given one-year suspended sentences in the County Jail after they pleaded guilty to a slot-machine charge.

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris, who passed sentence in Allegany County Circuit Court upon the men, suspended the jail sentence on condition the defendants conduct their business in an orderly manner and allow no gambling or gambling devices of any type to operate on the premises.

Change Their Plea

Button and Carney, through their attorney, Thomas N. Berry, at first pleaded not guilty to the charge and the case was being heard by a jury. Midway through the trial, they decided to change their plea to guilty and the jury was dismissed.

Det. Sgt. Murray E. Jackson and Sgt. Thomas S. Smith, who came here temporarily from the State Police headquarters at Pikesville, testified that on Saturday, August 30, they played a console model slot machine in the pool room and were paid 80 cents when they "hit" the device for 16 games. They said they were attracted to the machine by a large crowd standing around playing the device.

In another case yesterday, Donald W. Smith, this city, was given a term not to exceed two years in the Maryland Reformatory for Males by Judge Harris. Smith pleaded guilty to larceny of a station wagon belonging to James F. Scarpelli, Virginia Avenue, which was found stripped at Bowman's Addition.

Two Other Fines

Two other $500 fines were levied yesterday by Judge Harris upon liquor law violators.

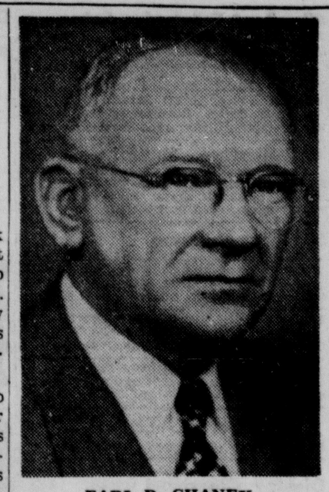

Eleanor Jackson, licensee of the Cotton Club, Park Avenue, Frostburg, drew one of the fines after she pleaded guilty to selling alcoholic beverages after hours.

Another $500 fine was assessed against two cab drivers, Carlton Wright, 32, Virginia Avenue, and Francis Aldridge, 42, 716 Shriver Avenue, when they pleaded guilty to possession and sale of liquor without a license.

The State Police sergeants, Jackson and Smith, were the witnesses against the cab drivers. State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher said that they paid Wright $10 for a pint and two half pints of whisky which he got from Aldridge.

Judge Harris ordered Wright and Aldridge remanded to the County

Community Chest Groups Meet, Name Drive Leaders

The campaign office of the Cumberland Community Chest Red Feather fund drive is in full operation with five local women working full time preparing for the opening next month.

Edwin M. Brown, campaign director, said the 45 members of the advance gifts committee will hold its opening dinner meeting Monday at 6 p. m. at the Cumberland Country Club with solicitation beginning in this section Tuesday morning.

At a recent meeting, the advance gifts committee accepted a goal of $56,000 to be raised from contribution from approximately 250 firms and individuals in advanced large amounts. This year's goal is about $2,000 more than last year.

Co-chairmen of the advanced gifts section are Frederic W. Eiler and Miles G. Thompson.

Group chairmen for the advanced gifts committee include James W. Bishop, George L. Buchanan, Clarence Lippel, William Ludman, Henry W. Price, Henry C. Swearingen, and Edgar Vandegrift.

Yesterday afternoon the sales army committee met with Earl D. Chaney, chairman, to plan solicitation of approximately 1,400 smaller firms, offices, shops, stores, etc.

Chaney enlisted four group chairmen for the sales army committee at yesterday's meeting in the campaign office in the Union Street County Building.

They are Donald W. Mason, Woodward D. Pealer, John L. Conway and Henry K. Duke.

The group discussed methods used in last year's fund drive and suggestions on improving the campaign were heard. The Sales army group also started naming five captains for each of the group chairmen of the section which will have 125 persons when completed.

The group also considered a goal for the section of $7,000, which is expected to be approved later.

Another meeting was held Monday at Sheehe's Restaurant in connection with the drive when the classified group chairmen met with Edward L. Ewald, chairman of the classified section, who called the conference.

The classified group accepted a goal of $35,000, which will be solicited among the employe groups of about 200 firms in the community. At the meeting, the chairmen suggested a donation standard of four hours of pay for each individual.

The group explained the new system would be adaptable to the wage changing scale and complies with standards used in larger manufacturing centers such as Pittsburgh and Detroit.

Group chairman of the classified section include Earl Robertson, George Buchanan, Henry W. Price, R. E. Barnard Jr., R. E. Arman, James Weber, J. K. Trenton, W. H. Adam and Charles E. Smith.

Officials also announced that Mrs. Arthur Fuller will be chairman of the women's residential section, and Charles S. Catherman Jr., has been named chairman of the publicity committee.

Moscow Miner Denies Attack On Small Girls

Trial Continues In Circuit Court

John Broadwater, 29-year-old Moscow coal miner, on trial in Allegany County Circuit Court on charges of rape of a nine-year-old girl and attempted rape of a seven-year-old girl, admitted taking liberties with the older child but denied the charges.

The trial, which continued until 5 p. m. yesterday, is scheduled to resume at 9:15 o'clock this morning. Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris is hearing the case in the absence of a jury.

Defendant Testifies

William L. Wilson Jr., Broadwater's court-appointed lawyer, called the defendant to the stand as he began presenting defense testimony. The man's parents and several other witnesses are expected to be heard this morning before the defense rests.

Broadwater related that on the afternoon of July 13 he agreed to drive the two children in his pickup truck to their home in Lonaconing from Shaw's service station at Moscow after the proprietor told him that the girls had missed their bus. They had been swimming at Piedmont, W. Va.

The defendant acknowledged that instead of taking them home he drove some five-and-one-half miles beyond Lonaconing to a point on Pompey Road where he stopped his truck for about five minutes. He admitted taking liberties with the older girl while sitting in the truck but denied that he raped her. He said he did kiss the nine-year-old girl and put his arm around the younger child.

Gives No Reason

Under cross-examination by State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, Broadwater could give no reasons for driving the children beyond Lonaconing or for taking liberties with the older girl.

Fletcher seemed surprised when Broadwater explained that he had consumed six beers that afternoon and considered himself somewhat intoxicated at the time he drove the truck to Pompey Road. The state's attorney said that in pre-trial questioning the defendant never mentioned anything about drinking beer.

When Broadwater told the state's attorney that he bought the beer from a man named Webb Waters in Lonaconing about noon Sunday, July 13, Fletcher requested the sheriff to summons Waters into court this morning as a rebuttal witness along with Lawson Duckworth, whom Broadwater said was in Waters' place at the time the purchase was made.

In presenting the state's case, Fletcher called upon both of the Lonaconing girls and their parents to testify. The older child charged Broadwater raped her and the younger one said that he took liberties with her. Dr. F. B. Whitworth, who examined the older child after the incident, said there were indications that she might have been raped.

While on the stand, Broadwater admitted under direct questioning by Wilson that he had a previous criminal record. He said that on September 16, 1945, while squirrel hunting, he accidentally killed a man and was convicted of manslaughter. On February 23, 1946, a woman from Eckhart charged him with assault with intent to rape. He was sentenced then to six years in the State Penitentiary as a parole violator.

Fire Co. Offers Building For Plant

Good Will Volunteer Fire Company a Lonaconing made its armory building available for new industry housing at a special meeting held Sunday in connection with the possibility that an undergarment factory may locate in the city.

The Lonaconing Industrial Promotion Committee is negotiating with a New Jersey firm which may locate in the George's Creek town.

John Eichhorn, president of the fire company, said the fire group made its armory available in the event the New Jersey firm planned to move to Lonaconing and needed a building to house its machinery.

Science Building Is Dedicated At State Teachers

Dr. Bamford Speaks At Frostburg Event

Frostburg State Teachers College's new $200,000 science building, recently completed and put into use during the current school semester, was dedicated last night at ceremonies held at the college auditorium.

Dr. Ronald Bamford, professor of botany and dean of the graduate school of University of Maryland, was the principal speaker and the building was presented to the state board of education by Dr. Nathan L. Smith, Baltimore, director of the state department of public improvements.

Walker Accepts Building

Mrs. Curtis Walker, Chevy-Chase, member of the state board of education, accepted the building as a representative of Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, state superintendent of schools.

Dr. Bamford, in his dedication speech, compared the Frostburg school building favorably with most modern science buildings in the country following an afternoon inspection of the building with other University of Maryland members.

He called attention to the need of scientists and mathematicians in government, modern industry and agriculture.

The speaker deplored the general impression that the study of mathematics and chemistry was "too tough" for the average student, stating that all students of mathematical minds should be encouraged by elementary, junior and high school teachers to take up the study of science.

Dr. Bamford then cited a case of a Friendsville, Garrett County youth, who, he said, came to him at the University of Maryland saying he knew nothing of science or chemistry but was willing to work and learn.

Low Bid Revealed

Today, the speaker continued, that young man has qualified himself to fill positions of responsibility at 10 different universities where expert scientific knowledge is required. He added the University of Maryland intends to keep him.

Dr. C. E. Cox, professor of plant pathology at the state university, instructor for the Garrett County student, later revealed his name to be Hugh Sisler, adding that Sisler will complete his work on a Ph.D. in February.

Following the dedication ceremonies Dr. Smith revealed the lowest bid for the library at Frostburg State Teachers College was submitted by a West Virginia contractor for $299,490 and was at least $50,000 less than was expected by the department of public improvements.

155 Attend Event

He strongly urged the governor of Maryland to accept the bid without further delay prior to awaiting the next meeting of the board of public improvements.

Approximately 155 guests attended the dinner which preceded the dedication including W. Theodore Bos-

Sperry Is Held Without Bond In Hatchet Fracas

A jilted suitor, charged with attacking a rival with a lathing hatchet, a tool described by police as "a wicked-looking instrument like the scalping hatchet formerly used by Indians," was ordered held without bond yesterday after he reportedly signed a statement admitting the charge.

Irvin Leroy Sperry 19, of Morgantown, an employe at a local department store, yesterday was served with a warrant charging him with assault with intent to kill. The warrant was served on him at Allegany County Jail where he has been held since the assault incident late Friday.

Troopers William F. Baker and Robert Wolford, of the LaVale Barracks of Maryland State Police, investigated the altercation which placed the assailant's victim in Sacred Heart Hospital for two days.

They reported Sperry parked his car at the driveway of the home of his former girl friend, Naomi Ruth Sweene, 17, of Morantown, late Friday night.

Until three weeks ago, the investigators said, the two had been dating, but since then the girl was dating Bruce Edward Diehl, 17, of Barrelville.

Diehl and the girl, together with the former's brother and his girl friend, had a double date Friday night, Baker and Wolford said.

Upon their return to the Sweene home, they found Sperry's car blocking the road, the officers reported. Sperry started up his machine, bumping and damaging the Diehl car.

Both drivers, jumped from their cars and Sperry proceeded to attack Diehl with the sharp hatchet, striking him four times in the head and forehead, and once on the left shoulder, using both the hammer end and blade end, the officers said their investigation reported.

The Sweene girl ran for assistance and when her father arrived at the scene, Diehl had Sperry on the ground.

Sperry then fled, they reported, leaving his car there, and called State Police. After the subsequent investigation, when they found Diehl in the hospital Saturday and Sunday, they filed the warrant against Sperry, Baker and Wolford concluded.

Changes In Election Laws Asked By County Supervisors

The Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors has made several recommendations for changes in election laws to the county delegation to the General Assembly including that of coordinating city and county polling places, wards and precinct zones.

John M. Robb, attorney to the election board, told the county delegation that too frequently confusion resulted because polling places for city and county elections were different for the same areas within the city limits.

He further noted, at a meeting Monday night, that it might be possible to combine the registration books of both city and county voters in one office under the jurisdiction of the county election board, since perpetual registration is conducted in both city and county.

The board of supervisors made no concrete suggestion or recommendation as to what steps should be taken but requested the county delegation take the matter under consideration.

City officials, when informed of the matter, declared that most of the work would probably have to be done in the county precincts to make them conform with city zones.

Mayor Roy W. Eves stated he thought the idea was basically sound but that he would have to give more thought to the matter to find a correct solution.

Other city officials said that the system of one office keeping the books would give too much jurisdiction to the county board, but that it would help relieve the city clerk of certain duties he must perform during city primaries when he is solely responsible for the election books, boxes, ballots and tally sheets. These could be turned over to county election judges at all elections under a new setup, they added.

Other matters brought to the attention of the county delegation by Attorney Robb were absentee ballots, state electors and votes from members of military academies.

Robb noted that various instances arise when persons who are residents of the state are out of the state during elections and thus are not able to vote, and that although soldiers may vote by absentee ballot a soldier's wife who is living with him outside the state's boundaries may not vote by absentee ballot.

He also said some invalided persons who cannot go to the polls are thus excluded from the right to vote. He suggested that these matters be considered by the delegation at the General Assembly's next session, which will begin in January.

In the matter of state electors, a vote for a candidate is in reality a vote for the party electors by state law, but Robb asked what could be done should a write-in candidate be elected within the state and no electors were named for this occasion.

Finally he asked the county delegation to get a legal interpretation on whether a member of a military academy such as West Point or Annapolis may be included as a member of the armed forces and thus be entitled to absentee ballots.

Chairman Charle M. See and Delegates Fred B. Driscoll, Estel C. Kelley and Horace P. Whitworth Jr., who attended the session at the Court House, told Robb they would take all the matters under advisement and see what action could be taken in January to aleviate the situation.

Beall, Mahoney Hold Debate In Telecast Series

Candidates Unable To Answer Questions

By JACK DAVIS

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21 (AP)—Maryland's Senatorial candidates met in a televised debate tonight that ended with each trying to out-talk the other, with neither being heard.

About all that was audible for the last two minutes was a jumble of words punctuated with "I do's" and "I don'ts" from George P. Mahoney, Democrat, and J. Glenn Beall, Republican.

Because neither was able to answer the other's questions, they agreed to continue the debate "later, on our own time."

It was by far the liveliest of the "face-to-face" series over WMAR which has brought together opposing congressional candidates from all parts of the state.

Mahoney asked Beall why he voted to cut the funds for schools.

"And is it true, did you speak only 28 minutes on the floor during the 10 years you were in the House? And what about your absentee and voting record?" Mahoney asked.

"George, you're dealing in half truths," Beall retorted. "That's the same way you were with former governor Lane and Rep. Sasscer. You deal only in half truths.

"My voting record is one of the best in the House," Beall added.

Mahoney also asked Beall:

"Why did you try to slip through a bill in the closing days of congress to give the Wilmer Engineering Co. in Baltimore a quarter million dollar claim after it already had been turned down by the court of claims?"

Beall's answer was lost in the splatter of words from both candidates.

Previously, Beall asked Mahoney why he, as a Democratic national committeeman, never raised his voice against the corruption and influence of communism "present in Washington."

"George, you even made speeches for Truman and Boyle," Beall declared.

"No I didn't. I never did," Mahoney replied.

Beall asked the same question again and got the same answer.

"Well, I'm glad to hear you say it," Beall replied.

The 15-minute program, extended for a few minutes by the station after the shouting started, began quietly enough with each candidate taking three minutes for statements.

Beall, who opened, said he would deal with corruption, communism and lack of a foreign policy of the Truman administration.

"Everyone knows how the administration has yielded to the influence of mink coats, deep freezes and the like. It's all to blame on its long tenure in office.

"The people are no longer represented by the government. It used to be that the people were commanders and their government slaves. Now it's different."

Truman To Spend Half Hour In City Tomorrow

President Harry S. Truman will spend half an hour in Cumberland tomorrow when his whistle-stopping "Give 'em Hell Special" arrives here during a five-state campaign tour.

Wilson Jr., chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for the county, is in charge of arrangements for Truman's visit. Michael F. Prendergast, co-chairman of the campaign committee, will assist.

The President will arrive here from Meyersdale, Pa., and will go to Harpers Ferry, W. Va., when he leaves here on his way to Washington.

Democrat Paper Backs Ike, Nixon And Rep. Beall

The Easton Star-Democrat, traditionally Democratic, has announced its support of General Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Presidency.

In an editorial, the Talbot County weekly newspaper said the voters of that county, although predominantly Democratic, have given majorities to the GOP Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates ever since 1936.

The Star-Democrat also voiced support of Rep. J. Glenn Beall in his bid for election to the U. S. Senate. Said the Star-Democrat: "He has served his constituents in Western Maryland well, and now seeks to serve all of the people of Maryland. We heartily endorse his candidacy."

Break Seen In Current Cold Spell

The Weatherman predicts a break in the current cold snap today, but first, temperatures are expected to fall below record early this morning.

The Weather Bureau said mercury will plunge to below 20 degrees this morning with a gradual warming today and tomorrow.

Yesterday temperature dropped to 21 degrees, a record low for October in Cumberland according to records at Constitution Park weather station. There was 21-degree readings on October 22, 1930, and October 28, 1942.

Last night the Weather Bureau said 20 per cent of the Western Maryland apple crop, still on the trees, faced the threat of being wiped out this morning by sub-freezing temperatures.

According to one orchardist, Maurice S. Martin, when it gets below 20 the apples freeze hard and thaw soft. They aren't good for anything but clear or immediate processing.

Even at higher temperatures, he said, when the apples freeze the growers have to let them stay on the tree until they thaw out.

"If we touch the apples when they are frozen," he added, "every spot we touch with our fingers turns black."

Low temperatures in nearby communities yesterday showed Deal, Pa., 16; Thomas, W. Va., 18; Frostburg, 19; LaVale, 20; near Frederick, 24, and Hagerstown, 22.

The local weather station at Constitution Park recorded low as 21, high temperature, 53, and at 9 p. m. mercury stood at 44 degrees. Humidity at 6 p. m. was 35 per cent.

Billiard Hall Operators Fined On Slots Charge

Suspended Sentence Figures In Case

George E. Button and John J. Carney, trading as Tip Top Billiards, 164 Baltimore Street, yesterday were fined $500 and given one-year suspended sentences in the County Jail after they pleaded guilty to a slot-machine charge.

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris, who passed sentence in Allegany County Circuit Court upon the men, suspended the jail sentence on condition the defendants conduct their business in an orderly manner and allow no gambling or gambling devices of any type to operate on the premises.

Change Their Plea

Button and Carney, through their attorney, Thomas N. Berry, at first pleaded not guilty to the charge and the case was being heard by a jury. Midway through the trial, they decided to change their plea to guilty and the jury was dismissed.

Det. Sgt. Murray E. Jackson and Sgt. Thomas S. Smith, who came here temporarily from the State Police headquarters at Pikesville, testified that on Saturday, August 30, they played a console model slot machine in the pool room and were paid 80 cents when they "hit" the device for 16 games. They said they were attracted to the machine by a large crowd standing around playing the device.

In another case yesterday, Donald W. Smith, this city, was given a term not to exceed two years in the Maryland Reformatory for Males by Judge Harris. Smith pleaded guilty to larceny of a station wagon belonging to James F. Scarpelli, Virginia Avenue, which was found stripped at Bowman's Addition.

Two Other Fines

Two other $500 fines were levied yesterday by Judge Harris upon liquor law violators.

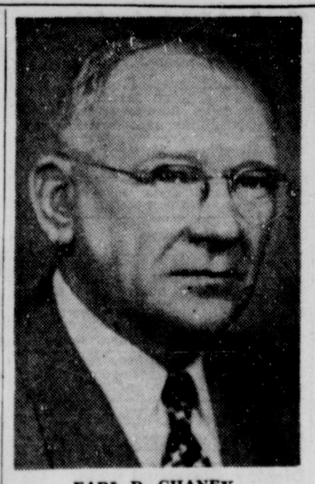

Eleanor Jackson, licensee of the Cotton Club, Park Avenue, Frostburg, drew one of the fines after she pleaded guilty to selling alcoholic beverages after hours.

Another $500 fine was assessed against two cab drivers, Carlton Wright, 32, Virginia Avenue, and Francis Aldridge, 42, 716 Shriver Avenue, when they pleaded guilty to possession and sale of liquor without a license.

The State Police sergeants, Jackson and Smith, were the witnesses against the cab drivers. State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher said that they paid Wright $10 for a pint and two half pints of whisky which he got from Aldridge.

Judge Harris ordered Wright and Aldridge remanded to the County

Community Chest Groups Meet, Name Drive Leaders

The campaign office of the Cumberland Community Chest Red Feather fund drive is in full operation with five local women working full time preparing for the opening next month.

Edwin M. Brown, campaign director, said the 45 members of the advance gifts committee will hold its opening dinner meeting Monday at 6 p. m. at the Cumberland Country Club with solicitation beginning in this section Tuesday morning.

At a recent meeting, the advance gifts committee accepted a goal of $56,000 to be raised from contribution from approximately 250 firms and individuals in advanced large amounts. This year's goal is about $2,000 more than last year.

Chaney enlisted four group chairmen for the sales army committee at yesterday's meeting in the campaign office in the Union Street County Building.

They are Donald W. Mason, Woodward D. Pealer, John L. Conway and Henry K. Duke.

The group discussed methods used in last year's fund drive and suggestions on improving the campaign were heard. The Sales army group also started naming five captains for each of the group chairmen of the section which will have 125 persons when completed.

The group also considered a goal for the section of $7,000, which is expected to be approved later.

Another meeting was held Monday at Sheehe's Restaurant in connection with the drive when the classified group chairmen met with Edward L. Ewald, chairman of the classified section, who called the conference.

The classified group accepted a goal of $35,000, which will be solicited among the employe groups of about 200 firms in the community. At the meeting, the chairmen suggested a donation standard of four hours of pay for each individual.

The group explained the new system would be adaptable to the wage changing scale and complies with standards used in larger manufacturing centers such as Pittsburgh and Detroit.

Group chairman of the classified section include Earl Robertson, George Buchanan, Henry W. Price, R. E. Barnard Jr., R. E. Arman, James Weber, J. K. Trenton, W. H. Adam and Charles E. Smith.

Moscow Miner Denies Attack On Small Girls

Trial Continues In Circuit Court

John Broadwater, 29-year-old Moscow coal miner, on trial in Allegany County Circuit Court on charges of rape of a nine-year-old girl and attempted rape of a seven-year-old girl, admitted taking liberties with the older child but denied the charges.

The trial, which continued until 5 p. m. yesterday, is scheduled to resume at 9:15 o'clock this morning. Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris is hearing the case in the absence of a jury.

Defendant Testifies

William L. Wilson Jr., Broadwater's court-appointed lawyer, called the defendant to the stand as he began presenting defense testimony. The man's parents and several other witnesses are expected to be heard this morning before the defense rests.

Broadwater related that on the afternoon of July 13 he agreed to drive the two children in his pickup truck to their home in Lonaconing from Shaw's service station at Moscow after the proprietor told him that the girls had missed their bus. They had been swimming at Piedmont, W. Va.

The defendant acknowledged that instead of taking them home he drove some five-and-one-half miles beyond Lonaconing to a point on Pompey Road where he stopped his truck for about five minutes. He admitted taking liberties with the older girl while sitting in the truck but denied that he raped her. He said he did kiss the nine-year-old girl and put his arm around the younger child.

Gives No Reason

Under cross-examination by State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, Broadwater could give no reasons for driving the children beyond Lonaconing or for taking liberties with the older girl.

Fletcher seemed surprised when Broadwater explained that he had consumed six beers that afternoon and considered himself somewhat intoxicated at the time he drove the truck to Pompey Road. The state's attorney said that in pre-trial questioning the defendant never mentioned anything about drinking beer.

When Broadwater told the state's attorney that he bought the beer from a man named Webb Waters in Lonaconing about noon Sunday, July 13, Fletcher requested the sheriff to summons Waters into court this morning as a rebuttal witness along with Lawson Duckworth, whom Broadwater said was in Waters' place at the time the purchase was made.

In presenting the state's case, Fletcher called upon both of the Lonaconing girls and their parents to testify. The older child charged Broadwater raped her and the younger one said that he took liberties with her. Dr. F. B. Whitworth, who examined the older child after the incident, said there were indications that she might have been raped.

While on the stand, Broadwater admitted under direct questioning by Wilson that he had a previous criminal record. He said that on September 16, 1945, while squirrel hunting, he accidentally killed a man and was convicted of manslaughter. On February 23, 1946, a woman from Eckhart charged him with assault with intent to rape. He was sentenced then to six years in the State Penitentiary as a parole violator.

Science Building Is Dedicated At State Teachers

Dr. Bamford Speaks At Frostburg Event

Frostburg State Teachers College's new $200,000 science building, recently completed and put into use during the current school semester, was dedicated last night at ceremonies held at the college auditorium.

Dr. Ronald Bamford, professor of botany and dean of the graduate school of University of Maryland, was the principal speaker and the building was presented to the state board of education by Dr. Nathan L. Smith, Baltimore, director of the state department of public improvements.

Walker Accepts Building

Mrs. Curtis Walker, Chevy-Chase, member of the state board of education, accepted the building as a representative of Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, state superintendent of schools.

Dr. Bamford, in his dedication speech, compared the Frostburg school building favorably with most modern science buildings in the country following an afternoon inspection of the building with other University of Maryland members.

He called attention to the need of scientists and mathematicians in government, modern industry and agriculture.

The speaker deplored the general impression that the study of mathematics and chemistry was "too tough" for the average student, stating that all students of mathematical minds should be encouraged by elementary, junior and high school teachers to take up the study of science.

Dr. Bamford then cited a case of a Friendsville, Garrett County youth, who, he said, came to him at the University of Maryland saying he knew nothing of science or chemistry but was willing to work and learn.

Low Bid Revealed

Today, the speaker continued, that young man has qualified himself to fill positions of responsibility at 10 different universities where expert scientific knowledge is required. He added the University of Maryland intends to keep him.

Dr. C. E. Cox, professor of plant pathology at the state university, instructor for the Garrett County student, later revealed his name to be Hugh Sisler, adding that Sisler will complete his work on a Ph.D. in February.

Following the dedication ceremonies Dr. Smith revealed the lowest bid for the library at Frostburg State Teachers College was submitted by a West Virginia contractor for $299,490 and was at least $50,000 less than was expected by the department of public improvements.

155 Attend Event

He strongly urged the governor of Maryland to accept the bid without further delay prior to awaiting the next meeting of the board of public improvements.

Approximately 155 guests attended the dinner which preceded the dedication including W. Theodore Bos-

Sperry Is Held Without Bond In Hatchet Fracas

A jilted suitor, charged with attacking a rival with a lathing hatchet, a tool described by police as "a wicked-looking instrument like the scalping hatchet formerly used by Indians," was ordered held without bond yesterday after he reportedly signed a statement admitting the charge.

Irvin Leroy Sperry 19, of Morgantown, an employe at a local department store, yesterday was served with a warrant charging him with assault with intent to kill. The warrant was served on him at Allegany County Jail where he has been held since the assault incident late Friday.

Troopers William F. Baker and Robert Wolford, of the LaVale Barracks of Maryland State Police, investigated the altercation which placed the assailant's victim in Sacred Heart Hospital for two days.

They reported Sperry parked his car at the driveway of the home of his former girl friend, Naomi Ruth Sweene, 17, of Morantown, late Friday night.

Until three weeks ago, the investigators said, the two had been dating, but since then the girl was dating Bruce Edward Diehl, 17, of Barrelville.

Diehl and the girl, together with the former's brother and his girl friend, had a double date Friday night, Baker and Wolford said.

Upon their return to the Sweene home, they found Sperry's car blocking the road, the officers reported. Sperry started up his machine, bumping and damaging the Diehl car.

Both drivers, jumped from their cars and Sperry proceeded to attack Diehl with the sharp hatchet, striking him four times in the head and forehead, and once on the left shoulder, using both the hammer end and blade end, the officers said their investigation reported.

The Sweene girl ran for assistance and when her father arrived at the scene, Diehl had Sperry on the ground.

Sperry then fled, they reported, leaving his car there, and called State Police. After the subsequent investigation, when they found Diehl in the hospital Saturday and Sunday, they filed the warrant against Sperry, Baker and Wolford concluded.

Changes In Election Laws Asked By County Supervisors

The Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors has made several recommendations for changes in election laws to the county delegation to the General Assembly including that of coordinating city and county polling places, wards and precinct zones.

John M. Robb, attorney to the election board, told the county delegation that too frequently confusion resulted because polling places for city and county elections were different for the same areas within the city limits.

He further noted, at a meeting Monday night, that it might be possible to combine the registration books of both city and county voters in one office under the jurisdiction of the county election board, since perpetual registration is conducted in both city and county.

The board of supervisors made no concrete suggestion or recommendation as to what steps should be taken but requested the county delegation take the matter under consideration.

City officials, when informed of the matter, declared that most of the work would probably have to be done in the county precincts to make them conform with city zones.

Mayor Roy W. Eves stated he thought the idea was basically sound but that he would have to give more thought to the matter to find a correct solution.

Other city officials said that the system of one office keeping the books would give too much jurisdiction to the county board, but that it would help relieve the city clerk of certain duties he must perform during city primaries when he is solely responsible for the election books, boxes, ballots and tally sheets. These could be turned over to county election judges at all elections under a new setup, they added.

Other matters brought to the attention of the county delegation by Attorney Robb were absentee ballots, state electors and votes from members of military academies.

Robb noted that various instances arise when persons who are residents of the state are out of the state during elections and thus are not able to vote, and that although soldiers may vote by absentee ballot a soldier's wife who is living with him outside the state's boundaries may not vote by absentee ballot.

He also said some invalided persons who cannot go to the polls are thus excluded from the right to vote. He suggested that these matters be considered by the delegation at the General Assembly's next session, which will begin in January.

In the matter of state electors, a vote for a candidate is in reality a vote for the party electors by state law, but Robb asked what could be done should a write-in candidate be elected within the state and no electors were named for this occasion.

Finally he asked the county delegation to get a legal interpretation on whether a member of a military academy such as West Point or Annapolis may be included as a member of the armed forces and thus be entitled to absentee ballots.

Chairman Charle M. See and Delegates Fred B. Driscoll, Estel C. Kelley and Horace P. Whitworth Jr., who attended the session at the Court House, told Robb they would take all the matters under advisement and see what action could be taken in January to aleviate the situation.
